

COUNTY SUPERVISOR Jean Fassler of Pacifica reviews with State Division of Highways official J. W. Rae the new plans for Freeway 380-Highway 1 realignment and interchanges in Pacifica. Engineers said at public workshop late last week that previous designs, dating to 1958, are impractical, because tie-ins to the proposed route to skirt Devil's Slide would be too steep and the curves too sharp. (Post Photo)

New Coast Road Plans Presented

State Division of Highways engineers, declaring a previously adopted Highway 1 route through southern Pacifica impractical, have offered four new possibilities.

The public got its first look at them Thursday at a joint meeting of highway engineers and city and county officials in Pacifica.

The state division said it wanted an indication of community preference for saving Pedro Beach, the Linda Mar Shopping Center and residences, the location of frontage roads, interchanges, parking areas and undercrossing, as well as the effect on the views of the ocean, the future development of areas near the freeway and the appearance of the freeway itself.

James W. Rae, state highways district design engineer, explained that original adoption of the Coast Highway through Pacifica, south to Half Moon Bay, was in 1958.

He said that before Route 380 can be completed, design for its westerly terminus on Highway 1 at Rockaway Beach must be determined.

The intersection design will be opened, Rae said, on the actual routing of the proposed Route 1 freeway.

Rae said that previous designs looked good on paper, but over the years have been found to be impractical because of the sharpness of curves and steepness of grades.

The off-ramps on the San Pedro section of the freeway would be nearly as steep as Sharp Park Road, he said, and this would not be practical for a 60-mile-an-hour freeway.

The termination of Crespi Drive in dead-end or frontage roads which use up most of Pedro Beach may not be desirable, Rae said.

There were four proposals offered:

1—(OF plan) The previous adoption with a sharp curve and frontage roads along the beach and steep southbound ramps. Crespi Drive is shown routed under the freeway to the beach frontage road, as is San Pedro Road and Linda Mar Boulevard. This is on a raised earth-fill and curves around the western edge of the Linda Mar Shopping Center, up over re-routed San Pedro Road, climbing sharply up Montara Mountain.

San Bruno Mountain

Not the Plum It Once Was for Daly City

By FRANK LAPIERRE

San Bruno Mountain is no longer the desirable plum it once was to at least one city bordering the vast open space.

Daly City Mayor Bernard J. Lycett said he and other city officials are "taking a long hard look" at the mountain before making any overtures for annexing it to Daly City.

Unlike South San Francisco, which last week pointed out it was the only logical municipality to help develop the mountain because of its planning experience in both residential and industrial tracts, Daly City and Brisbane have withheld comment.

It is apparent both cities are feeling out the developer—Crocker Land Company (Foremost-McKesson)—to see what direction the company will eventually take in its dealings.

Crocker, on the other hand, is expected to make known its affiliation preference within eight weeks.

There is speculation on many subjects, including density, commercial sites and whether the annexation will include the Crocker Industrial Park next to Brisbane, according to Daly City City Manager David Rowe.

Without this industrial park included in the package it seems likely no city would want the 3,150-acre development of residences and open space.

Parks and homes do not pay their way and, as Daly City already knows, bring financial chaos to a community in the form of higher tax rates to pay (Please See Page 2, Column 5)

A Reduction in JUHSD Vandalism

The cost of vandalism has been nearly halved in the Jefferson Union High School District, perhaps through increased weekend security.

Administrators say they are not really sure why the Daly City-Pacific district's vandalism was down from $27,585 in 1969-70 to $15,340 in the 1970-71 fiscal year.

The only new approach has been the addition of a security patrol force on weekends. Superintendent Edward Morgan said he would like to believe the new program had something to do with the vandalism decrease.

Actually, vandalism, a problem that has plagued nearly every school district on the peninsula, began its descent in dollar value last year, although the decline was relatively insignificant: from $29,296 to $27,585.

A trend? No one knows, but they are hoping.

The widespread vandalism has raised havoc with insurance companies and they won't cover glass breakage and most other objects of vandals anymore.

The only returns the JUHSD has seen for its insurance premiums has been $1,021 in the categories of "Other Loss, Theft," according to Glenn South, the district's business manager.

Although the losses through vandalism have caused concern in the district, the pattern has been fluctuating: It has gone up one year and down the next. But, the figures have been getting bigger.

For instance, in 1963-64 (Please See Page 2, Column 3)

Land Rezone Approved by D.C. Council

The Daly City Council Monday approved rezoning of a 5.2-acre parcel of land on Southgate and Cerro Avenues from apartments to commercial office.

The property will be the site of a $1.5 million tow-story medical-dental building, according to plans submitted by San Francisco developer William C. Pearce Jr.

Attorney Paul Hupf, representing the developer before the city council, noted the property was quite suitable for location of a medical-dental facility.

Adjacent to the site is a convalescent hospital, while nearby is the Mary's Help Hospital complex.

Hupf called the structure a "distinct asset to Daly City." Construction is scheduled to start in September with completion in July, 1972, Pearce said. Architects are Kelly, Dodd & Koester of San Francisco.

Police Protection

Colma Can't Afford $4,000

The small cemetery town of Colma cannot afford to pay Broadmoor $4,000 per month for police protection, Councilman Earl Taylor said last week.

Presently the town is paying $1,000 monthly to the Broadmoor Police District for protection.

At a recent meeting of the Broadmoor Police District and Colma Town Council an increase in the monthly fee was asked.

Taylor said yesterday it was conceivable Colma could pay the amount asked, but he noted the town was still in the dark on finances until a report from the accountant is received.

Since the death of Police Chief "Dini" Lagomarsino last month the town of 500 has suffered several setbacks. These include a warning that the city's insurance coverage may be cancelled, and criticism of attempts by the council to appoint the mayor's son to the police chief's job.

Mayor Raymond D. Ottoboni Sr. said no appointment had yet been made to the police chief's post.

His son has been appointed to the assistant chief's slot and is the only policeman the city has at present, it was pointed out.

The explanation came on the heels of Councilman Wallace H. Honeywell's suggestion that reading of letters from persons seeking the chief's job be stopped and held over for studies in a closed door personnel session.

The Hartford Insurance Company which has been giving Colma coverage in the past has granted the town a second 30 day extension—until July 14—of its coverage.

Meanwhile, the town is looking into another offer for an "umbrella" policy that would provide as much as $3 million through 1966-67 the vandalism (Please See Page 2, Column 4)

7 Percent DC Budget Boost?

Although some $1 million has been trimmed from the operating budget, Daly City may still experience an increase of seven per cent in the upcoming 1971-72 budget year.

And this anticipated increase does not include salary raises.

While the new budget figures presently exclude the water department operating budget—which historically has paid its own way—it does include slots for three new policemen, one fire department dispatcher, one fireman, one park-utility man and one mechanic.

Two city employee slots will be dropped this year—one custodian and one central service department employee.

In discussing the matter Friday, Daly City's Manager David Rowe said an increase of some eight per cent would probably be made in the water department operating budget.

Three new maintenance personnel will be added to this department. The budget is paid out of water revenues.

Rowe said more than $1 million was trimmed from budget requests by his office before the package was presented to the council.

The council, after paring costs from one department and adding charges to others, was able to trim the budget even further.

Whether the increased budget will necessitate a substantial tax rate increase was not known at this time, according to city officials.

Although the council is expected to adopt its budget by July 1, the County Assessor is not expected to inform the city of the new assessment charges until the first week in August.

Daly City was reassessed this year and homeowners are complaining about the increase in valuations. Some homes were hit with a 20 per cent increase in assessed valuations.

How this increase will affect the present city tax rate of $1.84 is unknown at this time, Rowe said.

The proposed budget offered to the council by Rowe is some $1.8 million higher than last year's budget of $7,911,730.

This figure is not a fair comparison, Rowe said. He said to arrive at a comparison the "operating budget" of the city should be used.

Last year Daly City's operating budget was $4,498,620 compared to the proposed 1971-72 operating budget of $4,969,210.

The dramatic jump in the overall budget is attributed to several major capital outlay projects, including two flood control programs; Westmoor swimming pool; improvements of East Market Street-San Pedro Avenue; Knowles Avenue improvements, and the Westlake community center.

Capital outlay in the city's water department has also been increased to keep pace with the city's growth, Rowe explained.

Meanwhile, the anticipated $209,100 in revenues from the new business license tax have fallen short by almost $25,000, it was learned.

As of May 31, 1971 the city's Finance Department had received only $185,000 from the tax.

The tax reports run from October to October of each year and Rowe said he was hopeful additional funds would be realized.

Adult Bookstore Owner Arrested in San Bruno

San Bruno Police arrested one of the co-owners of an adult bookstore Monday charging him with selling obscene matter.

Booked was Arnold Haskin, 40, of 1780 Edna May Way, Apt. 1, Mountain View. Police said the arrest was made on a warrant issued by Municipal Judge F. Jose de Larios.

Police also utilized County Sheriff's Department Crime Lab video-tape equipment as an evidence gathering device in the arrest procedure.

About two hours after the 2:30 p.m. arrest,

Haskin was released on a $500 bail, which was paid by his partner, Glenn Bumgardner, 35, of 1211 Bellview, Burlingame.

Bumgardner said he has retained San Bruno Attorney John Bible to defend Haskin. Bumgardner said he intends to seek a court order to keep the police from making arrests until the matter of obscenity is proven in court.

The bookstore at 540 San Mateo Avenue, was expected to be open for business again yesterday. Haskin is scheduled to appear in the Northern Judicial Court at 2 p.m. Monday.

'Play It Cool,' Says San Bruno's Mayor

"Play it cool," Mayor Maury Hamilton advised concerned citizens at Monday night's City Council meeting, in regard to the arrest—just hours before—of the owner of an "adult bookstore" on San Mateo Avenue.

Seventeen letters against the store at 540 San Mateo Ave. had been received by the Council, and one writer, Joe Haggarty of 1891 Dobner Ave., had asked permission to address the Council.

"The City Council is as greatly concerned as yourself," Mayor Maury Hamilton advised them.

He had received some calls on the subject—and asked Police Chief Russ Cunningham to investigate.

"When the man first came in," Chief Cunningham reported, "he was summoned to my office and was told that this city would not go for his kind of operation. Last week, a purchase was made. The gentleman was arrested this afternoon, and further investigation is continuing.

After the applause from the audience died down, Hamilton added that "because of Supreme Court decisions on free press, we had to make our case carefully and well. We think our case will stand up."

Haggarty was then invited to make his address.

"I think our job is only partly done," Haggarty told the Council.

He declared that since such cases were based on standards of the particular community, it was important to establish what the standards of San Bruno were.

He and his group, he announced, are ready to go door to door, with copies of the books, and ask the resident to write the council as to whether or not such books meet with community standards.

Councilman Tony Governale objected to circulating such literature in the community.

"You would be hiding your head in the sand if you think that our teenagers did not know that bookstore was there," Haggarty said.

Mike Mace, a local resident and a local merchant, objected to threats to boycott San Mateo Avenue merchants if they allowed the bookstore to continue.

"I think you'd be a bunch of nitwits to do a thing like that," City Attorney Joseph Galligan declared.

The petition, he said, would not be admissible in court, and it would all play into the hands of the defense attorney who would ask for a change of venue. Any San Brunan who signed such a petition would be ineligible to serve on the jury, he warned. He described such a case as a very difficult one. What it may all come down to, he declared is not community standards, but jurors' standards, and when it comes to 12 jurors, agreement on such standards would be difficult to arrive at.

He said he had reviewed seven to eight phone calls from merchants asking him what they could do.

"There is nothing they could have done," he declared. Too much publicity, he stressed could prejudice a conviction—thus, all concerned should "play it cool."

"My objection is, in giving such matter wider circulation," declared Hamilton. "There are many people of morbid interests."

You should reexamine your motives."

"Your point is well taken," conceded Haggarty. "I would like to see what steps could be taken to prevent a recurrence."

"To get a conviction," said Galligan, "and a severe enough sentence to discourage future offenders."

Planning Chairman Vic Ogrey suggested requirement of a use permit for a bookstore or newsstand; Hamilton felt that the city had no power to do such a thing. All San Brunans can do is to play it cool.

'Honestly, I'm Trying to Make a Buck': Partner

By BOB PETERSON

Inside the locked doors of A&G Enterprises, co-owner Glen Bumgardner was frantically making telephone calls. His partner, Arnold Haskin, had just been arrested on a charge of selling obscene material.

"Just let me make one more call," said Bumgardner, reaching for a wall telephone that was all but covered with posters that make Playboy fold-outs lame by comparison.

"Arnie has been arrested for selling obscene material," said Bumgardner into the mouthpiece.

A&G Enterprises, 540 San Mateo Avenue, San Bruno, is more commonly referred to by many city residents as "that store."

In business three weeks, the outlet for sexual materials and various devices has been the target of citizen attack since the day its doors opened.

At about 2 p.m. yesterday, San Bruno Police Captain Bill Cann and Detective Sgt. Hugh Fraser arrested Haskin on a warrant issued by Judge F. Jose de Larios.

After completing his phone call, Bumgardner turned and said, "Honestly, I'm trying to make a buck. If I thought any of this would make anyone a pervert, or what they weren't already, I wouldn't sell another book."

Bumgardner said he was an unemployed body and fender man and needed to make money to support his wife and two-week-old son.

"I figured the people in San Bruno would buy this stuff," he said with a swing of the arm to displays on the walls. "And they have."

Bumgardner said he doesn't see anything obscene about the materials he sells. "I don't like the stuff," he said. "It has no story line. But I don't hate the stuff."

It is Bumgardner's intent to seek an injunction to keep his store open until the matter of obscenity is determined in court.

"If these so-called concerned citizens had to pay attorney's fees instead of using the services of the district attorney they may think twice about filling up the courts with stuff like this. I think there are other things causing more problems than dirty books," said Bumgardner.

He said that if the public didn't make such a fuss about his line of business the sales would drop about one-third and 50 per cent fewer people would buy.

Bumgardner said the reason the present location was chosen was because of the need for a small space and a low rent. He said the building, which is the former location of the San Bruno Chamber of Commerce, fits both these requirements as well as being a middle point from similar bookstores in San Francisco and San Mateo.

According to Bumgardner, the real estate agent handling the rental wasn't too pleased with the proposed shop, but the owner of the building didn't want to be sitting with an empty office space.

A GOOD DEED ATTEMPT—Three persons were hurt June 8 on Junipero Serra Freeway when one of them slowed down to help a motorist stalled at the side of the road. (ABC Photo)

Samaritan Act Leads to Injuries

A good samaritan act of a motorist June 8 on the Doran Bridge on Interstate Highway 280 resulted in injuries to three persons, California Highway Patrolmen reported.

Officer L. R. Osborn said that Jim Anderson, 19, of 60 Lowell Drive, Redwood City, ran out of gas and stopped on the shoulder of the road.

Gary Franklin Forister, a College of San Mateo student of 1345 Tuolumne Road, Millbrae, slowed down to ask if he could help Anderson.

As Forister was backing his auto towards Anderson's vehicle, Forister's car was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by Joseph Merrill Hambun, 50, of 2998 Mariposa Drive, Burlingame, an official of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development in San Francisco.

Taken to Chope Community Hospital were: Forister, who suffered fractured ribs and skull lacerations; Hambun, who suffered a depression of the lower jaw and loss of teeth, and his daughter, Rochelle, 15, who was treated for a fractured nose and forehead lacerations.

More About Pact Negotiations Stalled district's teachers return from their summer recess.

The district was pressing for a July 1 settlement, she said.

The JCTA remains bent on retaining its Memorandum of Agreement, but Miss Jackson said its contents are negotiable. Although the contents are subject to modification, perhaps, the JCTA is not taking a hard-line approach at this time, Miss Jackson emphasized. "If the contents are too feeble there is not an agreement."

Along these lines, the JCTA already has gone on record—at its June 8 meeting—that if there is no comprehensive negotiated agreement by August 31, the date the Memorandum of Agreement expires, and all other alternatives are exhausted, teachers will strike.

The teachers only ask for what has been declared legal in expecting a new agreement for 1971-72, Miss Jackson stated.

costs were below $5,000 annually. However, in 1967-68 they soared to nearly $12,000 and then zoomed to nearly $30,000 the very next year.

Glass remains the biggest loss: $10,808 of the total $15,340 figure for the 1970-71 year.

Jefferson High School in Daly City lost to Oceana High in Pacifica its distinction as the perennial favorite of the vandal. The decrease was not sharp at Jefferson: $1,162 to Oceana's $1,418.

Jefferson's loss reached a high in 1968-69, the year the district suffered $29,296 in damage from vandalism. The Jefferson figure went from $3,858 in 1967-68 to $8,847 in 1968-69 and to $3,705 in 1969-70.

Glass loss was highest at Westmoor. Oceana was a close second in that category.

Taylor informed the more than 50 persons attending the meeting that things were shaping up. He asked their indulgence.

"We're in a hell of a spot," Taylor said, "and I'm asking the people to keep their cool. We've had no rash of crimes in the city and no police chief has been appointed yet."

He said the council was doing "its very best" to iron out the difficulties. He explained that he represents not only the citizens of Colma, but Cypress Lawn Cemetery (his employer) and the people of San Francisco.

"I've never lost sight of that fact," Taylor said.

He explained that Cypress Lawn and the people of San Francisco had a big financial stake in Colma and he was dedicated to protecting it.

for schools and supporting government agencies.

Whatever city finally adopts San Bruno Mountain can expect to pay out between $17-$20 million for public improvements, such as fire departments, hydrants, roads and added police units.

There are agreements that could be worked out between the developer and municipality on financing of these improvements, however the city will eventually wind up paying, officials agree.

Crocker Land Company's intentions have been described as "vague" regarding what they intend to build on the mountain.

In a colorful brochure distributed last week, plans for Visitation Ranch were sketchy and noted only the open space (1,350 acres), parks (130 acres), public schools, and road (420 acres) and easements (250 acres) that would be included in the development.

Commercial and housing complexes were drawn in on a fold-out color map but were not detailed in the text of the brochure.

Additionally, Crocker Land Company has not officially approached any city government on the matter. Rather, the company has held public meetings around the North County—mostly at various civic meetings—asking for input of general ideas.

Daly City now has an assessed valuation (1970-71) of $121 million. With a population of some 67,000 the city's per capita valuation is a low $1,900.

South San Francisco, on the other hand, enjoys a per capita valuation of some $3,800 with its population of 46,650 and assessed valuation of $179,110,000.

The projected population for San Bruno Mountain is about 49,000. No assessed valuation figures are available and no estimate of the investment by the builder has been made public.

However, without substantial commercial and industrial parcels to support it the assessed valuation would lower per capita figures in whichever community the mountain will be included, some officials claim.

With the Crocker Industrial complex near Brisbane included in the annexation package the mountain would be a plum.

Without it, the development would likely be a financial drag on a community, they agree.

In the case of Daly City, with the industrial complex part of the agreement, the per capita figure would increase. On the other hand, South San Francisco, without the industrial park, would possibly experience a lower rate.

The higher the per capita rate the lower taxes, officials point out.

For this reason no one in Daly City government will say whether they want the mountain development.

If the mountain is to be chopped up piecemeal among the three cities of South San Francisco, Daly City and Brisbane, it is likely Daly City will back away, Mayor Lyett and city aides have indicated.

The key to whether a city can afford San Bruno Mountain is not the population, which requires substantial support services, but the Bayside Crocker Industrial Park, most city officials agree.

ley would be blocked by the raised fill. Cost of this plan: $11 million.

2—(NF plan) Locates freeway slightly eastward, eliminating the first row of houses on Anza Drive, as well as sweeping through the middle of Linda Mar Shopping Center. This routing also would be on fill and the houses on the west side of De Solo Drive, near the shopping center, would be eliminated to relocate the center. San Pedro Road, Crespi Drive and Linda Mar Boulevard would cross under the raised freeway to beach access roads. More of the beach would be retained. An $8 million plan.

3—(NS plan) The freeway would be arched over much the same path at the same elevations as the NF plan, except that it would be built on a raised open structure similar to those in San Francisco. The ocean views would not be totally cut off in this plan. Development of parking beneath the elevated ramps would be possible. Cost: an estimated $16 million.

4—A freeway at as near grade level as possible, with a 2000-foot curve (instead of 1000 as presently adopted) sweeping up across the shopping center but preserving the view of the ocean and leaving more of the beach.

Linda Mar Boulevard would end in a Y, curving north and south and De Solo Drive would become a through street, passing beneath the freeway at San Pedro Road. Access to Rockaway Beach and a curving pedestrian overpass arching up from the area near Linda Mar Boulevard to the beach are provided. Estimated cost: $9½ million. More houses and more of the shopping center would be imperiled.

All of the proposals called for an eight-lane freeway system, with at least one set of frontage roads and on and off ramps on each side.

Vallemar resident John D'Lai, 375 Keith Avenue, said he opposed the entire freeway idea. He said state highway engineers had "hearts just as cold as these earth movers."

Mrs. Jean Fassler, a county supervisor and Pacifica resident, expressed dismay over the eight-lane proposals.

She said county supervisors believed four lanes would be adequate at the present.

The highway officials said that construction of this project was at least ten years away and that growth projections for traffic indicate a need for from six to eight lanes after construction of Freeway 380.

Other members of the public questioned the need to lose the shopping center, the beach area and some homes on De Solo and Anza drives.

Highway engineers said their studies indicated that 30,000 persons used that area of Highway 1 daily and that the use is expected to reach 90,000 daily by about 1990.

Mayor Nick Gust said that the community could not blame the freeway for its problems, when, in fact, the community population made the freeways necessary.

PD Zone Approved

San Bruno's City Council approved a planned-development (PD) zoning for 81-acre Bayhill, after hearing a presentation by developer Lewis W. Douglas, who is also developing Sheltered Creek.

The site, just north of San Bruno Avenue, between future Cherry and Elm Avenues, had been zoned for many years for commercial uses.

As a result, planning should now be starting on:

1. A high rise office building on Cherry Avenue extension, north of San Bruno Avenue.

2. San Bruno's first major hotel, located in a eucalyptus grove overlooking the entire project, located just inside the Rte. 380-280 interchange.

3. A neighborhood shopping center, on San Bruno Avenue, between Cherry Avenue extension and Junipero Serra Freeway.

Eventually, the office building will develop into a complex of a dozen such buildings, some high-rise, some low-rise, and some curved around a large pool in the midst of the development. The hotel will develop into a three-building complex, consisting of one, two or three separate hotels.

A plea for a man to guard the park on busy weekends was made by Recreation Commission Chairman Polly Sandkulla.

Such a person, working under the park and recreation department, would be responsible for going through the park, curbing vandalism, checking restrooms, enforcing rules, taking care of picnic reservations—many of which wind up in disputes now—checking play areas and preventing dismantling of equipment.

A protest was heard at the meeting to alleged mistreatment of a dog by a local carnival.

Protests were voiced by Frank Prisco, 3890 Madera, in behalf of the San Bruno Jaycees, Les Kelling of Crestmoor Drive and Mary Patterson of 2448 Carmel.

Agreement With Teachers Said Illegal

The San Mateo County District Attorney's office has told the Jefferson Elementary School District's Board of Trustees that the Memorandum of Agreement with teachers is illegal.

Trustees have directed the district's negotiators, Public Relations, Inc., to follow the legal interpretation from District Attorney Keith Sorenson's office, according to District Supt. Frank Greenwood.

The opinion from the district attorney's office was:

1. Collective bargaining type agreements are illegal under the Winton act, and

2. A local governing board of a public school district is not legally empowered to enter a binding bilateral agreement with certificated employees under the Winton Act since local governing boards have only those powers expressly granted to them by statute and those necessarily implied.

The opinion was written by Deputy Keith Breon.

The demand of the Jefferson Elementary School District Teachers' Association for the Memorandum of Agreement last year led to a week-long strike of teachers prior to its adoption.

The JCTA has been applauded by other teacher organizations throughout the state for its achievement in obtaining the pact, and it is being used as a model agreement elsewhere.

Representatives of the Daly City teachers' group have given numerous lectures and workshops on the subject of such agreements.

Breon also termed illegal any delegation by the board of its discretionary powers.

Among these, as specified by Breon:

—The provision that teachers may not be required to attend a school's faculty or committee meetings after the close of the daily school session, except such meetings as may be mutually agreed upon between the teachers and the principal.

—Teacher involvement in attendance accounting procedures.

—Teacher determination of supply and instructional material priorities and needs.

—Joint teacher-district committee determinations on textbook selection and in-service training program needs.

Delegations of powers would be valid, Breon said, if the various committee involvements were merely advisory.

Breon said several of the provisions are invalid because the governing body of a school district has no authority to enact a rule or regulation that alters the terms of a legislative enactment.

South S.F. Schools

Audience Participation Policy

South San Francisco Unified School District Trustees Monday night spent an hour establishing a policy that will allow a 30 minute period of audience participation at the end of board meetings.

According to the policy, which had a first reading, the participation period will begin at 10 p.m., or earlier if the agenda items are covered earlier.

Trustees are attempting to end the board meetings at 10:30, with items not covered being placed on the next meeting's agenda. Trustees also want speakers to sign a card giving their name and subject they wish to discuss.

Gary Capurro, representing the Certified Employees Council, said the time limitation to 30 minutes will limit communication, and in some cases people may not feel they are getting a complete hearing if they are under time pressures.

Mrs. Barbara Contos accused the trustees of taking a negative attitude, and said the board is giving those in the audience the feeling that it is censorship.

Board President Leo Padredii said the board was only trying to cut down on time wasting and had no intention of restricting people from speaking.

He said that the cards would indicate how many people wanted to speak, and that the 30 minutes would be broken down to accommodate those people. As to the subject matter on the cards, he said this may prevent speakers talking repeatedly on the same subject.

Superintendent Paul Nielsen said decisions made after 10 p.m. are often poor ones, since they are made in an atmosphere "where you want to get out of here and get home."

A San Mateo County Superior Court ruling on May 7 held that the present Memorandum of Agreement is legal, except in the areas of binding arbitration in grievance cases, Miss Jackson said.

The San Mateo District Attorney's office last week wrote an opinion that declared the entire agreement illegal.

Miss Jackson called the district attorney's ruling "not very specific" and "just blanket opinions."

The opinion was given at the district's request, and negotiators for the trustees have been directed to base their efforts on the district attorney's opinion.

"The teachers believe that such an agreement insures both parties the knowledge of the responsibilities to make the operation of the schools more effective and provides what is best for the education of the children in the district," Miss Jackson said.

The JCTA gained the Memorandum of Agreement, one of the first in Northern California, after a strike of several days prior to the opening of school last September.

Council Meet in SSF to be Filmed

South San Francisco's Monday night council meeting will be filmed for posterity, or however long Western TV Cable intends to keep the video tape.

The city's cable system plans to video tape the meeting as part of a pilot project in local program origination.

City workers Tuesday and Wednesday installed temporary lighting in the council chambers to supply candlepower necessary for the two video tape cameras that will be in operation.

In addition, crews are working feverishly to install a new air conditioning system to offset the extra heat the television lights will create.

Dave DaPrato, program director of Western TV Cable said the filming will be a pilot project that will show what can be done, how well it can be done, and whether it will be received well by the councilmen.

He said that depending on council response, the video taping may become a regular part of the cable station's programming. A preview showing will

Colma to Be Deleted From Chamber's Name

By FRANK LA PIERRE

A motion to delete the name "Colma" from the title of the Daly City-Colma Chamber of Commerce barely passed during a board directors meeting last week.

The motion made by Mayor Bernard J. Lycett, a director of the chamber, required a two-thirds majority vote to succeed. It passed 10-5, with five directors absent.

Daly City Postmaster Vince Murphy objected to chamber president James Sargen casting his vote and also expressing an opinion on the subject. According to Murphy both actions were in violation of the chamber's charter.

But Murphy's objections were overruled when it was learned such action could be taken by a chamber president.

At the last directors' meeting in May it was decided to hold the matter over for further study. Another attempt was made at Thursday's luncheon to shelve the issue and, instead, make contacts with Colma city officials asking them for their active participation in the chamber.

Lycett noted that similar attempts had been made repeatedly over the years to no avail.

In fact Colma costs the chamber money when they are included in representing the chamber at various functions, Lycett said.

He said continuing to include Colma in the chamber is against the best interests of business in Daly City.

Director Fred Martin strongly criticized the continuing use of Colma's name in the chamber.

He said efforts had been made in the past to have both the city government and the cemeteries take a more active part in the chamber, but nothing had come of it.

"The cemeteries will not contribute . . . have not joined and will never join," Martin said.

President Sargen informed the directors he had personally met with Colma officials and noted, "I can't see how they desire to participate further."

A suggestion by chamber manager Peter J. Markovich that the chamber be renamed the "Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce" was supported by past-president Don Halverson, of PG&E.

A strong opponent of deleting Colma from the title is Mission Merchants' Association president and Chamber director Vince Merlo.

Merlo said some directors were worried because new Colma commercial development near Serramonte may be cutting into their Daly City businesses.

Crash Hurts D.C. Couple

A Daly City couple escaped serious injury when their new sports car went out of control on La Honda Road Thursday, plunged down a 20-foot embankment and burst into flames.

Reported in satisfactory condition at Mary's Help Hospital today were Michael Wait, 24, an airline serviceman, and his wife, Barbara, 21, of 545 Clarinda, Apt. 4, Daly City.

California Highway Patrolman Donald Osterman estimated Wait's car must have been going 65 to 75 miles per hour when it went out of control a mile east of Cabrillo Highway.

Some of SSF Problems Discussed

By BOB PETERSON

Some of South San Francisco's problems and positions were explained briefly last week to a group of residents attending a meeting of the Avalon Concerned Taxpayers.

Mayor William Borba, City Manager Gaie Dreisbach, Police Chief Sal Rosano and City Planner Dan Pass were guest speakers.

Consensus concerning the future of the downtown business area was that unless the merchants are willing to help themselves, the city won't go out of its way to be of assistance.

The merchants recently voted down a proposal to establish a Downtown Merchants' Business Improvement Area in which they would voluntarily tax themselves with the funds being used to promote the area. Councilmen Monday night adopted a resolution killing the improvement district.

Dreisbach noted that departmental requests for the 1971-72 budget have exceeded last year's budget by $700,000.

He said that this year he intends to allow all requests for personnel to reach the council level without his making any comments on them.

"It is time for the council to face the fact that there is a need for added personnel," said Dreisbach. He said he was opposed to the present structure of combining departmental functions. "I will be recommending that a finance department be established and that a personnel director be appointed," said Dreisbach.

The new city manager said it was hard for him to comprehend why the city has continually used its reserves to balance the budget.

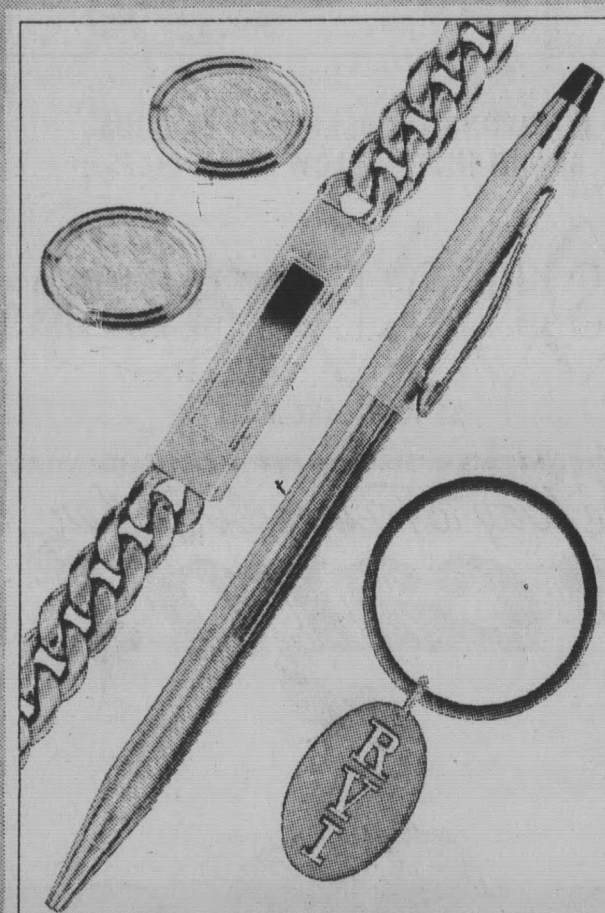

"It's hogwash that the maintenance of the city's beautification projects should come from the general fund," he said.

He also had some remarks for state intervention in local affairs. "Total disregard for local interest is growing," he said. "If the state is not creating a new agency it is ordering local governments to do this or that. Most of the time it involves money which the state forgets to supply."

The County Flood Control District, whose membership includes the County Board of Supervisors, also came under attack.

Dreisbach said South San Francisco presently pays $80,000 annually to dredge Colma Creek and the County reimburses but $20,000 of this amount. "You are being double taxed," said Dreisbach. City residents pay their local taxes and also taxes to the county, part of which is used for flood control.

San Bruno Group Plans Tax Protest

A group of taxpayers from the San Bruno-Millbrae area is planning to invade the chambers of the County Board of Supervisors this morning to protest rising property taxes.

The group calls itself "People's Revolt Against Taxes" (PRAT), and says it is against any increase in local, county and state budgets, and seeks changes in the state property tax laws.

Mrs. Ruth Harris of 2420 Bennington Drive, San Bruno, is the founder of the organization.

She said that after the recent property tax assessment increases she began calling people who had been writing protest letters to the editors of various newspapers to organize a united protest.

Last Sunday night a group met at the home of Mrs. Harris and the wheels of revolt began moving. "I am surprised at the response," said Mrs. Harris. "I didn't know so many people had that much fight in them."

Mrs. Harris said she invites anyone in the county concerned about rising property taxes to join her organization at the first budget session of the supervisors.

"We intend to see that the county budget doesn't go up," she said. "And we also want the county supervisors to put the pressure on Sacramento to change the property tax laws."

One of the letter writers contacted by Mrs. Harris was Mrs. Beth Nielsen of San Bruno. "They (elected officials) are not going to pay attention to letters," said Mrs. Nielsen. "We have to show force in mass."

Mrs. Harris added that "We just decided that we have to do something other than complain to each other."

Thieves Rob Salvation Army

Daly City police held out little hope today they would find the trio that tapped the till of a charitable agency that needs the money badly.

The three adults walked into the Salvation Army thrift shop at 2900 Geneva Avenue shortly after noon Friday and stole some $40 from the cash drawer.

"I can't believe people would go so low as to steal from an organization that is dedicated to helping the needy," police lieutenant Jim Doran said.

Contractors Ordered to Control S.S.F. Dust

By BOB PETERSON

Notices to comply with the terms of their permits were sent Thursday to contractors doing grading work in South San Francisco.

Councilmen last week unanimously agreed to instruct the city engineer to follow through with suspension of grading permits if contractors do not control the dust.

Under the terms of the contract a notice of compliance is sent out. Contractors have five days in which to comply. At the end of that period, if they still are in violation, permits will be revoked.

Residents told the council how they were covered with dust. They said they couldn't wash their cars or paint their homes.

Councilman Frank Bertucelli blamed the city staff. He said the city engineer always has had the power to revoke permits.

"We have a staff to take care of things like this," said Bertucelli. "If they don't do it, then we'll have to get someone else who will."

City Manager Gale Dreisbach quickly came to the defense of City Engineer Lou Goss who was not at the meeting because he's on vacation. "The city manager is to blame, not the director of public works," said Dreisbach.

Also coming to the staff's defense was one of the contractors, Borue O'Brien, general superintendent of Plombo Construction Company.

"You're not going to solve the problem by brow-beating the staff," said O'Brien. "Being on the receiving end, I know they have not been idle. I'm not going to sit here and let that allegation be made."

One developer, Henry Richman, an executive with the J. H. Snyder Company which is building homes in Westborough, made some remarks about motorcyclists the audience considered distasteful.

Richman, saying that motorcyclists cause much of the dust problem and that they're probably South San Francisco residents, said he would like to shoot one or two of them. He said that way others would not return to the area.

According to Richman, it is almost impossible to catch the bike riders. He said that he had asked the police department if he would be justified in shooting trespassers, and was told trespassing is a misdemeanor, not a felony.

Before getting off on the motorcycle tangent Richman had said the revoking of permits would "guarantee a dust bowl."

He said the only way to solve the problem was to oil some areas, seed the slopes and constantly water the rest.

Richman said he has given the police department permission to enforce the trespass laws. He said he would prefer charges and prosecute the violators.

Resident Robert Volosing said, "It is sadistically humorous. In the name of progress we are scraping our hills bare. We haven't been able to take care of the dust problem in this small area, and now we're talking about developing San Bruno Mountain."

'I Do's' Recited Last Week by North Peninsulans

Wednesday, June 16, 1971 THE POST

The garden of the San Mateo home of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos d'Aquino was the setting this afternoon for the reception which followed the marriage of their daughter, Virginia M., and William T. Daly. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Daly of Millbrae.

White pompon chrysanthemums, white gladioli, baby's breath and stock banked the altar of St. Timothy's Church for the noon wedding. Similar flowers decorated the reception site.

Virginia wore a traditional gown of chiffon over Italian silk. The costume featured long veil trimmed with Chantilly lace. The bride carried gladioli petals which were shaped into a giant camellia as she approached the altar with her father.

Dressed in a dark blue gown of chiffon over satin was Patricia McCallum, the matron of honor. Similarly fashioned gowns of light blue were worn by the bridesmaids, Beverly McNeal, the bridegroom's sister, and Anne-Marie d'Aquino, Virginia's sister. The trio carried bouquets of white daisies and blue forget-me-nots.

David Berg attended William as best man and Don Daly, the bridegroom's brother, seated guests with Scott Hunt.

Mrs. d'Aquino took her place in the family pew in a light lavender dress which featured a high collar and a vee neckline. She completed her costume with a purple orchid corsage. White gladioli were pinned to Mrs. Daly's blue dress.

For her wedding trip to Mexico, the bride changed to a multi-colored pantsuit. Upon return, she and William will establish a residence in Redwood City.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Daly were graduated from San Francisco City College. She is also an alumna of San Francisco State College. Ernesto and

Vicki Ann Smedley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Smedley of San Mateo, recently became the bride of William Joseph Sheehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sheehan of Daly City. The couple who exchanged vows at Holy Angels Catholic Church in Colma, is now living in Menlo Park after a wedding trip to Hawaii. (Photo by Jack Peterson)

Nuno d'Aquino of Australia are her brothers.

Bracco-Gleason

Antigua, British West Indies, is the honeymoon destination of Mr. and Mrs. Gary John Gleason (Susan Jane Bracco) who were married at 10:30 this morning at All Souls Catholic Church in South San Francisco.

The Rev. Arthur Schoenfeldt, CSC, conducted the service for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Bracco of South San Francisco and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold V. Gleason of Old Westbury, N.Y., who traveled to the Bay Area for the ceremony.

When Susan walked to the altar with her father, she was wearing a silk organza gown trimmed with lace. The costume featured a high Victorian neckline and long sleeves. Her bouquet was fashioned with multi-colored flowers.

Mrs. J. Terry Garrigan of Yardley, Pa. attended her sister as matron of honor. Secondary attendants were Barbara O'Neill of Hillsborough, Mrs. Joseph W. Bracco of San Francisco and Nancy Doyle of San Mateo.

Each of the girls was dressed in a multi-colored silk print peasant dress and carried a bouquet of white daisies.

Best man for his brother was Harold A. Gleason of Alexandria, Va., and ushers included Michael Paterni and William Middendorf Jr., both of Washington, D.C., and Joseph W. Bracco of San Francisco, the bride's brother.

Multi-colored flowers decorated the California Golf Club for the reception which followed. Mrs. Bracco greeted guests in a pale blue silk costume trimmed with French ribbon and Mrs. Gleason selected a green and white print outfit.

The new matron was educated at Notre Dame High School and Saint Mary's College in Notre Dame, Ind. Her husband is an alumnus of the University of Notre Dame who is now employed in New York.

The newlyweds will make their first home in Port Washington, N.Y.

Dietrich-Marasco

Honeymooning at Lake Tahoe are Mr. and Mrs. John Joseph Marasco who were married this noon at All Souls Catholic Church in South San Francisco.

The bride is the former Patricia Marie Dietrich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred John Dietrich of South San Francisco; her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rictor Marasco, also of South City.

Patricia recited her vows in a sleeveless dress of white silk organza which was fashioned with a high collar and a train. Her veil was French illusion and her flowers were stephanotis, baby's breath, and baby roses.

Marilyn Dietrich was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Jo Anna Marasco, sister of the bridegroom; Kathy Severi, cousin of the bride; and Joanne Thompson. They wore light pink Gibson Girl dresses and carried nosegays.

The same style dress was chosen by Marjorie Ann Marasco, the bridegroom's sister, who was the flower girl. John Cerquettini, Patricia's god-child, carried the rings.

Dennis Del Grande was best man for John. Guests were seated by David Dietrich, Patricia's brother; Ed Signorello, John's cousin; and Bob Davis.

A reception followed at the South San Francisco Elks Club. Patricia is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Cerquettini of South San Francisco. She attended Mercy High School and the College of San Mateo.

John attended South San Francisco High School, received his AA from CSM, and his BA this month from Sonoma State College. He is the grandson of Mrs. Josephine Scalise.

The newlyweds will live in South San Francisco.

Jones-Buttel

Two bouquets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums decorated the altar at the Burlingame Assembly of God Church last night when Sandra L. Jones and Stephen C. Buttel exchanged vows.

The Rev. Douglas Farrington officiated at the 7:30 p.m. service for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Jones of San Mateo and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Buttel of Millbrae.

For her wedding, Sandra selected a white organza Empire gown with Venice lace details and peau d'ange lace appliques on the skirt, chapel train and bishop sleeves. She carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Cheryl Powers, the maid of honor, set the style of dress for all the attendants in a pink and white floral chiffon Empire costume with a straight floor length skirt. She carried pink carnations, straw flowers and rosebuds.

Bridesmaid duties were shared by Rori Headlong of San Diego, Karen Williams of San Mateo, and Diane Darbinian of Hillsborough. They each carried bouquets of blue carnations, straw flowers and pink rosebuds.

Final SSF Symphony Registration

Final registration for the eighth season of the Summer Symphony will be accepted at South San Francisco High School Auditorium during the first two weeks of rehearsals.

The Summer Symphony is sponsored by the South San Francisco Recreation and Park Department and is under the direction of Robert Bridges.

The Summer Symphony includes two performing organizations of adult and student musicians. The Band will be rehearsing every Tuesday and Friday evening through August 8. The Orchestra will rehearse Wednesday evenings beginning today. All rehearsals are from 7:15 to 9:30 p.m. at the South San Francisco High School Auditorium, according to Bridges.

"The members of the two organizations span the generations from high school students through adults," said Bridges, "and the calibre of the resultant group is quite high. In the last 7 years, the organization has held numerous concerts and has premiered the works of several Bay Area composers."

Dean's List

Two Daly City students were named to the Dean's Honor List at the University of California, Riverside following the winter 1971 quarter.

The Daly City students are Janet C. Benton and Harold Clifford Faulkner II.

A green floral chiffon frock was worn by Nikie Tuley, the flower girl, who carried straw flowers and rosebuds. Paul Ingram was the ring bearer.

Best man for the benedict was Harris Morris and Mark S. Jones, the bride's brother, seated guests with Phil Shearer, Steve Malkemus, and Jim Williams.

A blue Alaskine sheath with blue lace overlay was worn by Mrs. Jones and a mint green Alaskine coat dress with long sleeves was chosen by Mrs. Buttel. Both mothers completed their costumes with yellow rosebud corsages.

After greeting guests at the reception which followed in the church, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon in Yosemite. For travel, Sandra changed to a costume which featured a lavender jacket and purple skirt.

Stephen is the brother of Nina Buttel and Gale Pearce. He and his bride will make their first home in San Mateo.

Glaser-Grotz

Friends and relatives of Arlene Carol Glaser and Brent Karl Grotz gathered at noon today at St. Veronica's Church for the couple's wedding.

Yellow and white daisies decorated the church and the reception site, the Brentwood Lodge. After receiving felicitations, the newlyweds departed for a honeymoon in Disneyland. They will make their first home in San Mateo.

Arlene is the daughter of Syl C. Glaser and Mrs. Lois C. Glaser of South San Francisco. When she walked to the altar with her father, she was wearing a long Belgium lace dress trimmed in satin. A satin Camellot veil detailed with lace and pearls completed the silhouette. She carried a prayer book covered with stephanotis, white orchids and baby's breath.

Mrs. Donald Haydel, the bridegroom's sister, attended Arlene as matron of honor and

School's Out (Sigh!)

SCHOOL'S out, graduations are over, all the end of term parties are over and the children are home, all day, every day.

JOYCE CLAY, Julie Sugrue, Mary Lou Anderson, Don Burkhardt, Hazel Cobb, Phillip Goerl, Daniel Nethery, Rennee Sans, Judy Ankrom, Debbie Burkhardt, Leila Fletcher, Tracy Stark, Sandra Harris and Susan Stark were among the local music students who took part in a recital held Sunday, June 8, in the Calvary cross Community Church.

The students, who study with Charles Gammon, Robert Hurrell, Ivyle Lederer and Minnie Klipfel, presented a program of piano, organ, trumpet and violin music.

Others on the program were Elissa Biagiotti, Dean Palmer, Lowell Androm, Fred Thorne, Chuck Pena, Leslie Yrigoven and Faith Marie, Bob Pimpken, Terri Gunther, Alan Maroaka and Mary Back.

THE JUNE AGENDA of events planned by the members of the Pacifica Fifty Plus Club will continue with an evening meeting on Tuesday in the Library located at Palmetto and Hilton Drive. According to Mrs. Edna Laurel Calhan, the president, the meeting will begin at 7:45 p.m. and anyone in the senior citizens category is invited to visit and consider uniting with the group.

Mrs. Calhan will entertain the club chorals, June 23, and on the following day the group will take part in the annual Forum picnic in San Mateo.

For more information about any Fifty Plus Club activity contact Mrs. Elizabeth Funderburg.

Mrs. Rose Franco, the chairman of the Florence Crittenton's North Peninsula Circle's fund-raising committee, is preparing to introduce the members of her committee and report on preliminary plans for the major fall fund-raising event, a dinner and fashion show, on the calendar for October.

According to Mrs. Jerry Stringer, publicity chairman for the Circle, Mrs. Franco will be one of the important parts of the final meeting of the season, slated for 10:30 a.m. today in Val's Redwood Room.

Mrs. Frank Greenwood will preside, and Mrs. Martha Cummings, Florence Crittenton Home Circle coordinator, will be the guest speaker.

GRADUATES of the Lakeside Presbyterian Church School Nursery School and their families are invited to attend the tenth anniversary celebration planned for the school on Friday evening, June 18.

A pot luck dinner is being held in the social hall of the church, located on Nineteenth Avenue and Eucalyptus Drive in San Francisco, and families interested in having a part in the celebration are asked to call the office of the church, 564-8833, as soon as possible to make the necessary arrangements.

DURING THE SUMMER, when social activities are less organized and there are fewer announcements for this column, I'll attempt to provide you with some tips on things to do with your children on those miserable days when the children can't play outside and some inexpensive places to take the family when an outing seems in order.

Hopefully, we'll be having some spring weather soon, but, in the advent that the worst happens and drizzly fog continues to plague everyone, why not buy two very inexpensive plastic drop clothes from the paint store or the variety store and keep them on hand to save you some aggravating clean-up jobs when the children work with crafts. One of the large sheets of plastic should more than cover the floor under and around your kitchen table and the second cloth should protect your table top from everything from flour and water paste to model glue.

Having purchased the plastic, and decided that crafts can be therapeutic for your young bundle of energy, you might find the purchase of a simple box of corn meal a remarkable investment. Pour the meal into a plastic wash basin or on a deep-sided cookie sheet and let the kids play with it as they would sand, it can be molded into mounds or moats, spooned into cups or pails, patted into muffin pans or just allowed to trickle through small fingers. It is fun and relaxing and you'll be amazed how long children will stay with this sort of activity.

When the pastime wanes, or you decide it is time to put the meal away for the day, don't throw it away! Put it in a plastic bag, label it, and save for another day when you can either use it for "sand" again or you may feel like introducing a more elaborate craft.

You'll need your drop clothes again, some glue and the corn meal for Indian-type "sand" paintings. Place some glue in the lid of a jar and give the child a lollipop or something with which he/she can spread glue, and a piece of paper, a cut open grocery bag is fine. The youngster then can draw a picture using glue and pour the corn meal over the wet glue, let stand for a minute or two and then shake the excess corn meal off the paper. It is easy, fun and challenging. The leftover corn meal may be used another day and your house isn't messel up because all he corn meal and glue have confined to the area cover by plastic.

If you feel inclined to assist a little with the activity you can purchase small boxes of dry tempera paints and give your child a small baby food jar with a lid, a quarter teaspoon size measuring spoon and a table-spoon and then allow him to mix a tablespoon full of meal with the quarter teaspoon of tempera in the jar. The lid can be screwed on and the mixture shaken together for more colorful "sand" paintings.

T.N. Accreditation Report

By ROCKIE MONTENGRO
Terra Nova High School

TN's five-year accreditation report shows many departments received commendations for their programs, as well as recommendations for improvement or expansion.

The English department was commended for its move toward expanding its elective program, the restructuring of its freshman and sophomore program to offer students greater skills in reading, writing, and speaking.

Tiger Tales, TN's quarterly news magazine, also earned a commendation for providing an excellent "outlet for student creative works and for 'motivating creative efforts' of the students."

Fine arts received commendations for its drama production, and "humanitarian zeal as evidenced by its presentation of its Christmas programs."

The Foreign Language Department was commended for its "creative approaches to teaching Spanish through publication of a Spanish newspaper," and for instituting a tutorial program. The evaluation made the recommendation, however, to give consideration to reinstalling the language laboratory.

Industrial Arts received a commendation for the individualized instruction techniques used, which allow the students to work at their own speed and level of ability.

The library was commended for its "large and inviting room," rapid increase in circulation, and the open atmosphere which resulted in increasing student use of the library. Recommendations were the creation of a small group research and study room, where groups may work together without disturbing other students using the library, and continued efforts in compiling a multi-media instructional materials center.

The Music Department received commendations for its excellent physical facilities, well planned and adequate size, the many performances by TN music groups in the community as a service and to increase interest in music, the development of a Music Boosters' Club, and the recent addition of a course in music appreciation to meet needs expressed by students. The one recommendation the Music Department received was for establishment of a separate transportation fund.

Social Studies received commendations for its new elective program for eleventh and twelfth grades, the successful involvement of students in the Model United Nations and Alan Nevins Symposium, and the use of simulation games as a motivational technique and as a method of applying concepts. Recommendations included a greater variety of instructional materials and methods to meet the wide range of student ability levels in required and elective courses.

General commendations went to the administration for providing a program for educational handicapped students, the district for providing work experience opportunities for all interested and eligible students, and the TN faculty and administration for developing the weekly activity period which allows school time for students to participate in co-curricular activities, club meetings, or to meet with teachers.

General recommendations included: District implementation of plans to provide more facilities for teaching, counseling and administration so that more effective accommodation of students can be instituted in the following school year. (The crowding manifest in present facilities shows evidence of having a deleterious effect upon further development of the instructional program as well as staff morale.)

Development of a drug education program, formation of an extensive vocational guidance program, and clarification of the duties and responsibilities of student government and co-curricular activities, and the allocation of appropriate time for these duties, were also cited by the committee evaluation.

NELL NORTON Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks. Let's talk about using canned peaches in our menus. Canned peaches add color and flavor to an old favorite, chicken and rice. This entree is so tasty and pretty that it deserves its fancy name.

ELEGANT CHICKEN

- 4 chicken breasts
- Salt, pepper and paprika
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1 can chicken broth (10 1/2 oz.)
- 1 can mushrooms (2 oz.)
- 1/4 cup minced onion
- three-fourths cup raw rice
- one-third cup slivered blanched almonds
- 4 halves canned cling peaches
- lemon juice
- powder ginger

Remove skin from the four chicken breasts and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Brown in the fourth cup melted butter.

Combine the can of chicken broth with the canned mushrooms, 1/4 cup minced onion and heat to boiling. Add the 3/4 cup raw rice and boil for 5 minutes. Turn into buttered baking dish.

Arrange the browned chicken breasts on top of rice and pour drippings from pan over all, sprinkle with the one-third cup blanched almonds. Cover with foil. Bake in 325-degree oven for 45 minutes. Remove foil.

Drizzle the four well drained peaches with lemon juice and sprinkle lightly with powdered ginger. Plate on top of rice and chicken, bake-uncovered for 10 minutes longer. Serves 4.

SPEAKING OF FANCY names, this dessert surely has one. Peaches Imperial. Impressed? I was, and so were my guests when I served it. And, to make it even more impressive to busy homemakers, it's easy and quick to make.

PEACHES IMPERIAL

- 6-8 canned peach halves
- 6-8 macaroons, crumbled
- 2 Tablespoons peach liquid
- 2 Tablespoons muscatel or other sweet wine
- 1 Tablespoon soft butter
- 1/2 cup sour cream

Place the peach halves in a shallow baking pan. Combine the crumbled macaroons, two tablespoons each peach liquid and sweet wine. Fill center of each peach with some of the mixture. Dot with the tablespoon soft butter.

Bake in 375-degree oven for 15 minutes and serve hot, topped with cream. Serves six to eight.

PEACHES ADD COLOR and taste to this entree too. Though it isn't as fancy as the first elegant dish, it's mighty tasty and economical and has been a favorite in my family for years.

QUICK-TRICK DINNER

- 1 can (12 ounces) pork luncheon meat, cut in 8 slices
- 4 cooked potatoes, quartered
- 1 can (about one pound) sliced peaches, drained
- 2 Tablespoons brown sugar
- one-eighth teaspoon allspice
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise
- 1 Tablespoon milk
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 Tablespoon cut chives

Brown the sliced luncheon meat in a large frying pan. (If you have an electric skillet, it's ideal for this meal.) Overlap the browned meat slices along one side of the pan.

Place the drained peaches next to meat and the cooked potatoes next to the peaches.

Combine the two tablespoons brown sugar with the eighth teaspoon allspice. Sprinkle over meat and peaches.

Mix the one-fourth cup mayonnaise with the one tablespoon milk, one-fourth teaspoon mustard and one tablespoon cut chives. Spoon over potatoes.

Cover pan, cook over low heat 5 to 10 minutes, until the potatoes are hot. Serves 4.

THE MARQUEE

Law offices can be as much of a madhouse as a psychiatric ward. They also can be the setting for comedy and tragedy. And melodrama must be a daily occurrence.

The one depicted in Morris Bobrow's hilarious musical comedy, "Jealous Mistress" is a little of each. But mainly, the offices occupied by a father-son partnership with battle ground in the center where a secretary referees the fights, resembles a vaudeville stage with every client, colleague and casual visitor performing an act.

If the Barristers Club of San Francisco's fourth production is an insight to their private practices, life must be a constant parade of paranoia, sight gags, bizarre happenings and a first class freak show. It's their best effort to date: a stronger plot line, quite catchy tunes, funny lyrics (all by Bobrow who also directed) and an above-the-average little theater quality. It's a fun entertainment.

And while it is all good natured ribbing and a lot of "in" jokes that most of the howling audience snapped up with raucous glee, the material is as good and even better than a lot of off-Broadway plays. Frank D. Winston is getting very polished as a producer and puts together a strong cast, attractive sets, and capable musicians to make this annual event something to look forward to.

The law is a jealous mistress, someone remarks, while implying it affords its pleasures with its perturbances. Who are funnier than people? Winston as Rodney Garbage, Jim Weinberger as Alfred Tweezer, Jan Eakins as Pauline Wooster and Hank Shain as Harvey Wooster portray prototypes of believable characters. You laugh at their ridiculousness on a stage, but would take them for granted on the street.

This year the three-day sell out run was at the Village Theatre on Columbus, an ideal setting for imbibing drinks while laughing at the production. Lines such as a prospective divorcee saying "You're an experienced attorney. You're used to putting things over on people," get a controlled correction from the layers, "you mean over to people."

The conflict between life styles of the two partners is apparent in Asher Rubin wanting to change the decor from conservative traditional to psychedelic quasi-hippie. Mike Marron, as the senior partner, draws the line at black lights in the waiting room and mobiles over the secretary's desk. Rubin might have missed his true calling in being a lawyer instead of a stand-up comic. He's got a real flair for show business and must be a riot in court.

Webelos Weiner Roast

An after-school weiner roast at the home of Assistant Webelos Leader Warren Moresco brought to a close a fun-filled year of Cubbing for the dozen boys in Webelos Den 7, Pack 19, Millbrae.

During the year, under the leadership of Ramiro Cruz, who was assisted by parents of boys in the den, Webelos kept active in den meetings which involved a variety of activities including craft work, swimming for fun as well as advancement, serious rap sessions about citizenship and ecology, spirited humor and horseplay and always delicious refreshments.

Many of the boys also participated in Pack outings which found them discovering wonders first hand at San Francisco's Exploratorium and Berkeley's Lawrence Hall of Science. Some were among the 50 adults and children on the Pack's snow trip to Bumblebee Toboggan Hill in early March. Others recently visited Audubon Canyon Ranch in Marin County.

Almost all the boys went on a dad-son Webelos overnight campout to the 40-acre spread in the upper Napa Valley owned by one of the den dads, Ray Breitenstein.

All the boys took part in the pack's booth at the Scout-o-Rama and spent the weeks in advance of the event selling tickets.

Because most of them will turn 11 during the summer and the Pack will not meet again until late September, boys who had earned it, were awarded the Webelos Arrow of Light, Cubbing's highest honor.

Those who received the distinctive badge, card and certificate are Jeff Breitenstein, Ramiro Cruz, Steven Finacom, Jacob Escobedo, Ben Mangels, Brian Marshall, Doug McGinnis, John Moresco, Dick Redmond, Paul Senatori and Mike Trotter. John Moresco also received dinner bars and his two year pin.

The Conquistadors are the only Northern California corps scheduled to compete in the California American Legion state championships at Los Angeles June 25. Representing the Bernard McCaffery Post of South San Francisco, it will also march in the Legion's convention parade June 26.

The dress rehearsal was to give home town friends, parents and supporters the first chance to see the results of five months of intensive practice by the 60 young people participating.

The only competitive corps in the area, the Conquistadors are directed by Bill West, formerly with a leading East Coast unit. It is backed by an active parents organization. Woman Says Appointment Was Illegal

The owner of a Colma flower shop Wednesday charged that Councilman Glen E. Duncan was appointed illegally to the council last August.

Mrs. Marion Daneluz, operator of Elmer's Flower Shop, said the Government Code of the State of California stipulates that an elected official must be a registered voter at least one year prior to his assuming office.

She charged Duncan had not registered until August 7, 1970—five days before he was appointed to fill the vacancy on the Colma Council left by the resignation of Raymond Ottoboni Jr.

Ottoboni, son of Mayor Raymond D. Ottoboni, assumed the post of police officer in Colma.

Mrs. Daneluz challenged Duncan's appointment on these grounds. The matter was referred to City Attorney Robert H. Cornell.

According to the current government code, an elected or appointed official need not be a registered voter to qualify as a candidate for an elected or appointed post, it was learned today.

The code cited by Mrs. Daneluz states a person must be an "elector" or any person qualified to vote.

In order to qualify to vote a person must have been a resident of a city for at least one year.

Contacted this morning, Mrs. Duncan, wife of the councilman, said she and her husband had resided in Colma for more than a year before he was appointed to the council.

Keep Court in Daly City Says C of C

The Daly City-Colma Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors last week approved a request for $200 to be used to hire youths to circulate petitions in support of the North County courthouse.

The courthouse, located at 75 Wellington Avenue in Daly City, is scheduled for shutdown in a few months when the new court facilities in South San Francisco open.

George Kirchhubel, a Mission Street tavern owner, asked the chamber to help fund the project to be undertaken by low income youths during their summer vacations.

Kirchhubel expects some 5,000 signatures on the petitions.

He will then present the package to the County Board of Supervisors, asking them to let the court remain open.

The money will be used to pay for the petition circulators at the rate of 25 cents per verified registered voter, Kirchhubel said.

Mini-Bus to Be Used

The Guadalupe Community Clinic in Daly City will have daily use of a Jefferson Elementary School District mini-bus.

Poor persons will be transported to the free clinic at Mary's Help Hospital, which is open from 7-9 p.m.

District trustees voted clinic use of the vehicle during the hours after district transportation runs are completed.

The clinic will provide the drivers, insurance and fuel, district Supt. Frank Greenwood said.

The Daly City Neighborhood Legal Center requested the vehicle.

Gasoline Leak Blamed for Fire

An undetected gasoline leak was responsible for the destruction of a pickup truck in a South San Francisco garage Thursday, firemen reported.

A mechanic, Byron Larson, was working beneath the vehicle when the gasoline ignited. He was unhurt in the fire, at 32 South Spruce Avenue.

ON JUNE 19 many ex-Jefferson and Jefferson students will pedal their bikes or move their legs in the Project Concern Bike-Walk in San Francisco.

The students will be following on the 23 mile walk route or the 35 mile bike route, sacrificing a little of their time and a lot of endurance for Project Concern, which supports clinics in many parts of the world. If a student asks for a sponsor, please oblige — even if it's only a penny a mile!

Formal approval of an agreement calling for a $270,000 study of extending the Bay Area Rapid Transit (BART) system through San Mateo County was voted June 8 by the Board of Supervisors.

The study is contingent upon receipt of an $180,000 planning grant from the federal Department of Transportation (DOT).

County Engineer S. H. Cantwell said the remaining $90,000 will be taken from leftover funds of the old West Bay Rapid Transit Authority, which went out of existence in 1969.

The board approved a "joint powers" agreement with the area-wide Metropolitan Transportation Commission (MTC), which plans to apply for a $2 million DOT grant to help with a regional $4.6 million study of mass transit expansion through the Bay Area. Other jurisdictions participating include the BART district, Golden Gate Bridge District, Alameda-Contra Costa District, San Francisco, Port of Oakland, Alameda and Santa Clara counties, and the cities of Oakland, Santa Clara, Santa Rosa and Vallejo.

The MTC grant application calls for a two-year study and cites its main purpose "to coordinate all specific plans for transit improvements in the region with the broad program."

Cantwell said the San Mateo County study would "refine and update" the old West Bay transit plan, which was rejected by the voters in 1969. West Bay came up with a broad plan for extension of BART through the county, complete with a bus feeder system, but its directors chose to submit only a first-phase bus system to the electorate.

The engineer told the board that the study would be a "valuable supplement" to the current review of extending BART from Daly City to International Airport. The latter study is about two-thirds complete. The federally-financed project, Cantwell said, would cover the possible extension of BART from Millbrae to Menlo Park and would "help (the county) determine a course of action."

As proposed, a San Mateo County Transit Development Board would be established to oversee the study. The seven-member board would include three MTC members, one each from San Francisco, Santa Clara and San Mateo counties. It would also include two members of the Board of Supervisors and two mayors representing the county's 19 cities.

The board would appoint a project director at an unspecified rate of pay and hire a consulting firm to do the study. The projected work program would cover much of the same territory covered by the West Bay Authority, although restricted to the Millbrae-Menlo Park link, including: route alignment and station location; estimates of patronage, fares and revenues; operating expenses; support facility planning and systems design; cost estimating and development scheduling; inter-relationship with the Southern Pacific Company and its facilities; financing methods, and implementation. The consultant would also be required to furnish 300 copies of his final report.

ALL CARPETERIA STORES OPEN DAILY 9 A.M. TO 9 P.M. — SATURDAY 9 A.M. TO 6 P.M. — SUNDAY 10 A.M. TO 6 P.M.

SIX PERSONS were injured in a head-on accident on Junipero Serra Freeway just north of Sneath Lane in San Bruno Saturday. Highway Patrolmen said Sister Maria Eva Mureno, 44, of Star of the Sea Academy of San Francisco, was southbound and swerved into the northbound lanes to avoid halted cars ahead. She was struck head on by Janet Marie Barbarita, 29, of San Francisco. A third auto, driven by Kurt Hoffman, 30, of Sunnyvale, then crashed into them. (ABC Photo)

HEAD-ON COLLISION—One man was fatally injured Sunday when these two vehicles slammed together with such force they virtually molded into one. Kenneth L. Kitcher, 36, 648 Manor Drive, Pacifica, is "in guarded condition with head and neck injuries," at Peninsula Hospital. Gary L. Jones, 23,

223 Jetter Avenue, Redwood City, died Monday of his injuries. Police said the car driven by Kitcher cross the center line on Skyline near Sneath Lane. He was charged by San Bruno police with manslaughter. (ABC Photo)

Drainage Situation Puzzles Councilmen

South San Francisco councilmen are having difficulty reaching an agreement with state highway officials concerning a drainage situation at Navigable Slough and Highway 101.

Ramp connections from the new Interstate 380 to South Airport Boulevard will be built in that area. State officials said they would be happy to work with the city on constructing sufficient drainage facilities at the construction site if the city will tell them what type of culvert is needed.

The city at this point doesn't know which way to go because it is waiting for a response from the Army Corps of Engineers as to what kind of flood control project will be approved.

Leo Trombatore, deputy district engineer for the division of highways, sent the councilmen a letter in which he listed three alternatives. He also said a decision must be made quickly in order for the drainage facilities to be included in the construction project.

Presently the city is considering a plan to divert some 1400 cubic-feet-per-second (cfs) of water from Colma Creek onto the present 500 cfs flow at Navigable Slough.

The city is asking the division of highways to provide for the combined 1900 cfs under the Bayshore Freeway as part of the Interstate 380 project.

However, if the Army engineers go through with an earlier proposal to divert up to 3300 cfs from Colma Creek to Navigable Slough, the entire situation changes.

Councilmen last week told highway officials they would have a definite answer at the next council meeting. They plan in the interim to get a commitment one way or another from the Army Engineers.

Bike Thefts Take on Epidemic Proportions

By BOB PETERSON

It happens at a garage in San Carlos, in front of a store in Burlingame, or on a school yard in South San Francisco.

All up and down the Peninsula, bike thefts have taken on epidemic proportions. They have increased in the past two years, according to one police source.

Police are mystified about what to do. They are besieged with reports of thefts, and have little if any way of tracing down the stolen vehicles.

This, they find, is a difficult thing to tell a youngster who has worked long, hard hours to buy a bike.

The story is the same. The name changes. The youngster has cut lawns, washed cars, done hundreds of odd jobs. He saved his money and went without many desired things. He bought his bike, then lost it — in most cases, to a daylight thief.

Police departments have stacks of abandoned or stolen bicycles that are auctioned off every six months or a year. Because there are no records or a uniform licensing system, tracing is almost impossible.

Bicycle shop owners try to aid police by reporting suspicious incidents of a person bringing in a bike and attempting to sell it cheaply.

Lawrence Ellsworth, owner of San Mateo Bike Shop, said he always asks for name and telephone number in every sale and repair situation.

"It might help if it is known that bike shops are checking for stolen bikes," said Ellsworth. "It is important to keep a record of a bike's frame number and its description in addition to getting it licensed."

Ellsworth said he sees no let-up in bike thievery. "If they are left unattended for a few minutes they are gone."

It is easy for bike thieves to sell the bike on the street. Police have reports of more than one instance of a young lad coming home with a $100 bicycle he has purchased "from a friend" for $5.

Bike stealing is classified as a petty theft (if the bike is valued under $200), a misdemeanor which can bring either a six month jail term, a $500 fine, or both.

Indirectly affects many people through insurance costs. No actual tabulation is available on how many bikes are stolen. Most are reported through Unscrupulous buyers gladly give $50 to $75 for such models. Police say that on the average, the loss per theft is approximately $75.

South San Francisco police said they began keeping a separate record on bicycle thefts because so many of them have been reported. During April they recorded 43 stolen with 75 per cent of them 10-speeds. For that month, 14 were recovered.

Lt. Ted Silvas said, "Each youngster must be on guard for his own bike."

This is hard advice to swallow for a young person who goes to the extra trouble of chaining his bike, only to return and find the chain cut and the bike gone.

Police suggested a case hardened chain, like those used on motorcycles. Ellsworth said this type of chain can cost as much as $10, as opposed to $3 or $4 for a regular bicycle chain.

There is no direct correlation, but it appears the thefts have increased with the increased popularity of the 10-speed bicycle.

This unique piece of motorless machinery can cost as much as $350 and higher for special orders. They are handcrafted and equipped with the finest components available.

The average 10-speed bicycle owner buys a cheaper model. Most pay in the range between $100 and $150. Incidentally, most new bike owners are persons in their early 20's and older, according to Ellsworth.

At one time most bicycle thefts, which were few and far between, were attributed to joy-riding pranksters. They would steal a bike, ride it to their destination, then abandon it.

Police say this still is one form of thievery. However, the fever has now spread to the adult population. Their motives differ. Most thieves steal for the fast buck, possibly in some instances to sustain a narcotics habit.

San Bruno police report an instance of a teen-age burglar whose method of operation was to steal bicycles and use them to get around the neighborhoods to commit house burglaries.

The fewest bike thefts are due to the so-called professional theft ring. This does not mean some forms of pre-arranged bicycle stealing does not exist.

In one instance in a North County city, a liquor store carried on a buy and sell operation. Clerks in over-the-counter discussion could arrange to supply any bicycle needs.

The problem is equally split between thefts from schools, businesses, mainly from large shopping centers, and open garages at residences, said Captain Bill Cann of the San Bruno Police Department.

He told of an instance where one individual lost five bicycles in the past year, three originals and two replacement bikes. "All were stolen out of the garage," said Captain Cann. "And several times the thief came in and cut locks."

Most cities have, or had at one time, a system of licensing bicycles.

According to Lt. Silvas, the South San Francisco Police Department years ago used to go to schools to license bicycles. He said the job of licensing in that city has since been turned over to the fire department.

This one-time police function has steadily been relegated to the firemen in most cities.

Police say there also is an apathetic attitude toward both licensing and locking of bicycles.

What is the answer?

Police agree that if there were strict enforcement of a mandatory and uniform licensing law it would help. They cringe at the possible repercussions.

Licensing of bicycles would require the bicyclist to have an owners' certificate with him, like the car owner. He would register his bike with the police, and be subject to citing for license and traffic violations.

Police say the community may not accept this, and the courts could easily become clogged with citations. "What do you do with a seven-year-old who wants to ride his bicycle on the sidewalk instead of the street?" is their first question.

If licensing were implemented, the police departments could send stolen bicycle lists (hot sheets) to bicycle shops, aiding in the search for stolen bicycles.

Captain Cann said a central records system is needed, eliminating the present out-moded method of simply exchanging information over the telephone with surrounding communities.

Ellsworth suggested all schools erect a fenced-in area for bikes, which some schools do. The area would remain locked during school hours. Students would have a set time to place and retrieve their bikes.

Another possibility outside the school yard is what police call selective enforcement. The police place heavy emphasis and manpower in specific areas where certain crime patterns develop.

San Bruno used this selective enforcement to good advantage recently at the Tanforan Shopping Center where numerous bikes were stolen in a short period of time.

Police set up an eight day stake-out, from noon to 5 p.m. daily. It necessitated the use of three officers on overtime pay. The officers also used their own cars as undercover vehicles.

Four separate arrests were made, two boys in each instance. Police said three sets of boys came prepared with their own bolt cutters.

The stake-out was successful in that it resulted in apprehension of the youths, however, not so profitable in terms of overtime pay.

Police agree the best protection is prevention, through education of bike operators and parents.

"Education is the root of prevention in all crime," said Captain Cann. "Our primary function should be to prevent crime, not continue to operate in a defensive capacity after the damage has been done."

"This is the area where police fall down," said the captain, "because we don't have the financing for the manpower necessary to offer proper prevention programs."

BICYCLISTS' FRIEND — Lawrence Ellsworth, owner of San Mateo Bike Shop, while working on bikes, keeps police alert to suspicious customers trying to sell a bike cheaply. Like others, Ellsworth favors cities having mandatory licensing.

TEMPTING SITUATION—This 10-speed bike, parked and unchained in a bike stall, is a prime target for bicycle thieves. In some instances, even chained bicycles are stolen as some of the more brazen thieves carry their own bolt cutters.

'Welfare Changes Would Save Taxpayers' Money'

Governor Reagan's welfare reform program would save San Mateo County taxpayers an estimated $249,310 in 1971-72, County Manager M. D. Tarshes said last week.

Previously, Tarshes said the proposals, as they stood at that time, would have cost the county $1.4 million.

The difference, he told the Board of Supervisors, was brought about by a series of amendments to legislation introduced on the governor's behalf.

"I like to think it was because of the action taken by the San Mateo County board," Tarshes commented.

On May 11 the supervisors took action opposing all aspects of the reform package that would shift costs from the state to the counties. Tarshes said then that the program, instead of saving county taxpayers $2.3 million as claimed by Reagan's staff, would add another $1.4 million to the property tax burden.

The major discrepancy was in a proposal under which the state would contract with counties for eligibility determination in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program. Tarshes estimated the shift would cost the county $2.5 million, compared with the $19,825 savings projected by the state. The proposal was eliminated by one of the amendments submitted during the past month.

Tarshes explained that there are two basic parts to the governor's plan. One has to do with administrative changes in the state-county welfare cost sharing formula. The other deals with the actual reform measures.

Taking the amendments into consideration, the county manager said yesterday that the reforms could result in a saving to the county's taxpayers of $676,808, while the administrative changes could mean an additional county cost of $427,498, leaving a net saving to the county of $249,310.

Tarshes urged the board to adopt a three-point resolution supporting the concept of welfare reform, 2) opposing changes in the state-county sharing formulas, and 3) opposing any ceiling on state welfare costs on the basis that excess needs would be shifted to the counties.

The two Democrats on the non-partisan board balked at Tarshes' suggestion. Robert St. Clair and Jean Fassler said they feared the county's position would be misunderstood, pointing out that the resolution was entitled, "Resolution supporting certain aspects of governor's welfare reform plan but opposing proposed change in cost sharing formulas pending further clarification thereof."

They insisted that the resolution be reworded to state that the board opposes the governor's plan because it contains two elements to which the board objects. Gerald F. Day, a Republican and Reagan appointee, said he favored a positive approach rather than one that was back-handed and negative. He voted against amending the resolution but Mrs. Fassler and St. Clair prevailed with the help of William M. Werder, who said he felt the resolution will have the same meaning, no matter how it is worded.

Board Chairman James V. Fitzgerald was not present.

BIKES FOR SALE — San Bruno Police Sgt. Robert Timko inspects bicycles his department will auction off on June 26. This is a scene that is repeated in all county cities. Police have stacks of bikes. With little or no way to trace the owners, they hold auctions to sell the vehicles that continue to stack up.

Mike is a ladies' man, someone who is never at a loss for a girl. He can enter a party full of strangers and within ten minutes end up on intimate terms with one of the girls.

Watch Mike in action.

When he leans against a mantle in a room to look around at the women, his hips are thrust forward slightly, as if they were centilevered, and his legs are usually apart. He locks his thumbs in his belt right above the pockets, and his fingers point down toward his genitals. Although his lips are closed he is saying, "I am a sexual threat. I am a dangerous man for a woman to be alone with. I am all man, and I want you, baby."

Mike has mastered the intricacies of body language. He knows exactly how to move about to convey a non-verbal message. More than that Mike has developed the ability to read the signals that are coming from another person. If the girl he chooses sends out defensive signals, he reads them and breaks them down. If her arms are clasped defensively, He opens his. If his posture is rigid? He relaxes as they talk. If her face is pinched and drawn? He smiles and loosens his face.

In short he reads her body signals and answers them, brushing aside her resistance and intruding himself into her awareness until she unconsciously is hooked and opens up to Mike. The poor girl is a victim of body language — hers and Mike's.

Everyone sends forth signals — usually unconsciously — that speak what words do not say. A family setting together can communicate enough to fill a book by the way its members move their arms and legs.

If the mother crosses her legs and the rest of the family follows suit, she has set the lead for the family action. One skilled in the science of kinesics reads from such follow the leader movements enough to determine the family set up.

Kinesics is a new and exciting science that has been uncovered and is being explored. It has been defined by Julius Fast as "A study of the mixtures of all body movements from the very deliberate to the completely unconscious, from those that apply only in one culture to those that cut across all cultural barriers."

Of body language Fast writes, "You've been playing the game of body language unconsciously all of your lifetime." Learn the ground rules and, "start playing it consciously. Break a few rules and see what happens. It will be surprising and sometimes a bit frightening, adventurous, revealing and funny, but I promise you it won't be dull."

Fast's message is echoed by other writers who are flooding the publishing world with the ins and outs of body language. Indexes to their articles may be found in Reader's Guide under, "Movement, Psychology of" and "Communication, Non-Verbal."

Among them are two by F. Davis, "How to Read Body Language," in Readers Digest, December, 1969, and "The Way We Speak Body Language; Kinesics," in the New York Times Magazine of May 31, 1970.

An article entitled, "Body Language, What It Reveals About You," by B. Ford, appeared in the August, 1970, issue of Science Digest. The issue of Vogue for Sept. 1, 1970, carried an article, "Bodyspeak, The Way You Move." Life magazine read the body language of politicians in an attempt to determine what they were really saying.

The article was published in issue of Oct. 9, 1970.

These and other articles are the key to interesting reading about a subject that can lead to unexplored oceans of fun.

Pressures for Growth Intrude on the View at Tahoe

Last week I was a high commuter. In fact, I was probably the highest commuter in the United States. My route was between the north end of Lake Tahoe (Incline Village) and Reno. The trip lasted about 45 minutes each way and took me over Mount Rose to savor some of the most beautiful scenery in the world. Each morning I awakened at 6,000 feet on the edge of Crystal Bay, to view the still clear waters of the lake. By carefully watching, I could see darting forms flee among the rocks and the purples and blues of Tahoe's waters. From there to the top of Mount Rose brought me to the 9,000 foot level and then down to 4,500 feet at Reno.

The Sierra, this June, are still covered with snow. From afar, the mountains sparkle and in some places look like towers of pure white ice cream. The road was dry and fast, but the mountainside is still in early spring. The view from the top of the pass looking to Tahoe is, of course, beautiful. But what I really was not prepared for was the breathtaking scene looking toward the east. Here Lake

Washoe, the valley land and Reno and its environs lie 4,500 feet below. This is new country. Sparsely populated, Nevada is just now feeling the surge of activity and growth. Historian Arnold Toynbee would well understand its burgeoning opportunity. In "A Study of History" (Oxford University Press) he wrote of the challenge of the environment and supports a thesis that the "effect of breaking new ground acts as a stimulus in itself." The Washoe Valley is new ground that calls for men and urges them to action. The pressures for growth include certain special conditions. Nevada has no corporate or personal income tax. It imposes no franchise tax, no inheritance, estate or gift taxes, and makes no charges for the recording of documents or for the transferring of real property. Property taxes average about two-thirds of those in California generally and about one-half of those imposed in our central cities.

My impression of Reno was entirely different from that received on casual visits. Its

Mental Health Cuts Opposed

The Laguna Salada Elementary School district of Pacifica has declined its endorsement, but the Jefferson Union High School District (Daly City-Pacifica) is supporting the North County Mental Health program.

The high school district's trustees approved a resolution commending the six year old program and urging San Mateo County supervisors to increase the proposed mental health budget so that the current program will not be cut.

The proposed budget would curtail the current program, trustees said.

The school district uses the North County Mental Health services to support its own counseling and guidance program, according to Dr. Floyd Gonella, assistant JHSD superintendent for special educational services.

The district's three psychologists refer at least 50 students each annually to the North County Mental Health facility, which is located on Southgate Avenue in Daly City, he said.

Nonetheless, there is a variable feeling toward the NCMH in the district, from the board on down, Gonella said. Simply, some educators like it, some don't, he said; some use the facility, other's won't.

Educators at one district school may find excellent response and be appreciative of the results, Gonella said, but at another school the reaction is just the opposite.

Still, the trustees approved the resolution, because—among other things—they said they believed proposed cuts and dismantling of the current program would result in a loss of future federal and state funding, making it virtually impossible to bring the program back to its current levels.

Laguna Salada trustee Dale Buettgenback called the North County Mental Health program worthwhile, but he also said he saw it as basically a special-interest group asking the school district to bring pressure on its behalf.

Lee Riewerts said he could not support the resolution, because he was unaware of the makeup of the group's budget and also did not know the reason for the deletions.

The vote was 2-2.

Death Cause Is Confirmed

The county coroner June 9 made it official that strangulation caused the death of Karen Lee Anderson, the 17-year-old South San Francisco girl found dead May 7 in the bedroom of her home.

Two youths, one her brother, are being held at Hillcrest Juvenile Home in Belmont in connection with the death.

Authorities said a full hearing for Robert Vernal Anderson, 15, and a companion Jerald Carl Clymo, 14, on the matter is scheduled for Friday.

Her mother found the girl's body which was wedged between the bed and the wall. Shortly after the incident the two boys disappeared.

Young Anderson gave himself up to South San Francisco police May 19 and Clymo was picked up later that day in a San Francisco hotel room.

Student Grants in Danger

WASHINGTON — Some San Mateo County students who are counting on federal financial assistance to attend college next fall may find such help difficult, if not impossible, to get.

Needy students in the county and across the nation have found the Educational Opportunity Grant (EOG) and Work-Study programs to be the difference between attending college or not.

But President Nixon's budget this year included only 40 per cent of the needed EOG funds and 50 per cent of the Work-Study funds. The percentages for California are 38 and 29 respectively.

For example, $128,400 is needed for the College of San Mateo's EOG program for 1971-72, but the Administration budget allotted only $56,824, or 44 per cent of the need.

The college's Work-Study program, which provides job salaries for students who must work to pay their way, needs $38,088, but was allotted $30,517, or 80 per cent of the need.

Menlo College in Menlo Park would get only 41 per cent of the EOG funds it needs. It did not apply for Work-Study funds.

San Francisco State College would receive only 46 per cent of the EOG money it needs, and 28 per cent of the Work-Study funds.

Back in April, the House Appropriations Committee added $101 million to the President's education budget, but when this increase was apportioned to the EOG and Work-Study programs, one-third of the financial need still remained unmet.

Where colleges had certified a need for $305 million for Work-Study, the House appropriated $197 million, and where the EOG program needed $156 million, the House voted $64 million.

An amendment was offered to increase the President's education budget by $729 million, which would have allowed complete funding of crucial programs such as EOG and Work-Study. Voting on April 7, the House defeated the amendment by the slim margin of 191 to 187.

Rep. Paul N. (Pete) McCloskey, (R-San Mateo) left Washington for a trip to Southeast Asia earlier on the day of the voting. He said later he would have voted for the increase had he been present.

The budget then went to the Senate, where its Appropriations Committee last week (6-10) approved further increases in the House budget, and the full Senate approved it 77 to 0. Included in the increases were $84 million for Work-Study and $40 million for the EOG program, but it's still not enough for full funding.

Because the House and Senate versions differ, a joint House-Senate conference now will attempt a compromise. Committee aides say this could be effected by allowing increases for some education programs but not for others.

BETTER BUSINESS

By LORENE BEASLEY
Better Business Bureau

"You name it, we'll charge it — provided you are a credit card holder" can be a major headache. Designed to remedy certain problems relating to credit cards, a law was passed by Congress on Oct. 26, 1970, regulating their issuance and use by:

- (1) Banning the unsolicited issuance of credit cards.
- (2) Limiting the cardholder's liability for unauthorized use of the card by another person.
- (3) Setting criminal penalties for the illegal use of credit cards.

Under the new Federal Law, it is illegal to issue a credit card unless the cardholder has asked or applied for it. However, an existing card can be renewed or a substitute card may be issued for the one the cardholder previously owned or used. This provision, which became effective immediately made the FTC Trade Regulation Rule of last May, which banned the mailing of unsolicited credit cards, unnecessary.

Beginning Jan. 25, 1971, effective date of the provision governing liability of a cardholder, the maximum for which he may be held responsible for unauthorized purchases by another person using the card will be $50.

The card issuer may recover from the cardholder, however, only if the issuer has:

- (1) Given the cardholder notice of the potential liability for unauthorized purchases.
- (2) Provided the cardholder with a self-addressed, pre-stamped notice which can be returned to the issuer in case a credit card is lost or stolen.

Once the cardholder has taken reasonable steps to inform the issuer that a card has been lost or stolen, no further charges can be made against the account.

As of January 25, credit card issuers must provide all the required liability notices to the cardholder, and cards issued must have identification, such as a photograph, showing the person authorized to use the card.

By Jan. 25, 1972, ALL CREDIT CARDS, regardless of issue date, must have such identification. Failure of an issuer to meet this requirement will release the cardholder from ALL LIABILITY for a lost or stolen credit card.

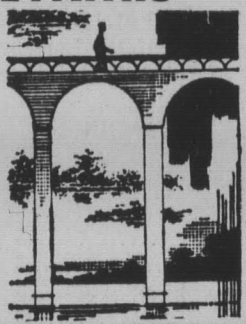

The new law also contains a provision that anyone making unauthorized charges on a credit card for $5,000 or more, can be fined up to $10,000 or imprisoned for a maximum of five years or both.

The Commission invited retailers issuing credit cards to direct any questions they have about the new law to Division of Special Projects, FTC, Washington, D.C. 20580. Consumers receiving unsolicited credit cards are urged to notify the commission promptly.

Contractor on Probation

A Half Moon Bay logging contractor has been given a suspended sentence and placed on three years probation in U.S. District Court after conviction for failing to file a federal income tax return in 1964. He also was fined $500.

Robert N. Poston, 42, who maintains a permanent home in Eureka, was sentenced June 4 by Judge Oliver J. Carter. The judge granted probation on condition that Poston file all delinquent returns, file future returns when due or within a reasonable time, and make every attempt to pay back taxes, interest and penalties.

He pleaded guilty February 3 to willfully failing to file his 1964 tax return, even though he had a gross income of $16,469 for that year.

Local Lass Is National Champion

Marilyn King of the Millbrae Lions' Track Club won the national pentathlon competition at Los Alamos, N.M., this weekend with a total just four points shy of Pat Daniels Banks' American record.

The victory assures Miss King of one of the two spots open on the American team for July's Pan-American games in Cali, Columbia.

Lions' coach Ed Parker said that Marilyn's 4,735 point performance could well be good enough to compete in the Olympics.

"Actually it may be harder to make the Pan-American team than the Olympic team," Parker said. "There's only room for two kids in each event in the Pan-American. There's room for three in the Olympics, and there are more events."

Marilyn bested the field in three of the five events that make up this distaff equivalent of the men's decathlon.

Fighting the thinner air of the plateau country and the first rainy day in several months, she took an immediate lead with a 13.9 running of the 100 meter hurdles. It was a personal best and netted her 1,060 points.

"Any time you get over 1,000 points in an event," Parker said, "you're competing well on an international level."

Marilyn put the 4-kilo shot 37-7/8 to win that event, which may be her weakest. She scored 819 points.

She scored 913 in the high jump, going 5-13/4. Then she jumped to 1,016 points in the long jump with a 20-03/4 leap.

"I think only five American women have gone over 20 feet," Parker said. "I think this was the best performance of the meet. It's like a man jumping over 26 feet."

Marilyn was running straight into a heavy wind in the last event, a 200 meter sprint. She ran 25.1 and got 923 points. Another tenth of a second would have netted her the overall point record.

Miss King, a junior at Hayward State, came to the Millbrae Lions TC last year from Hawaii. The competition in Hawaii wasn't quite stiff enough. She had been competing at the 4200-4300 point level.

She improved almost immediately. She took second in the pentathlon last year, with a total of 4,534 points. It should take a 5,000-plus point performance to do well in the Olympics.

Judy Durham of Seattle was 5-4 in the high jump and a 4,525 total. Linda Iddings of Seattle was third with 4,392 points.

Barbers, Playboys Grab Pacifica Softball Wins

The Pacifica Park, Beach & Recreation Department's Men's Softball League began the second half of league play with Manor Barber, 2901 Club, Winter's Playboys, Ski and Dive, Romano's and Arden Dairy winning.

Danny Cohen and Rich Miller combined to rap out 6 hits, as Manor Barber handed the Surf Lounge their sixth straight setback, 15-5.

Romano's kept their play-off hopes alive, slipping by Sears, 7-4. John Leland and Ray Navarro paced Romano's by collecting three hits each.

Ski and Dive rolled to its sixth victory as they by-passed Ed Cordero, 14-7. The ski boy's used the homerun hitting of Dan Martin, Dave Mehl and Bob Greyson to pick up the win.

The 2901 Club All-Stars rolled the Mariner, 12-4. The hitting of Blake Branson and Frank Fuentes and the pitching of Gil Clayton were the highlights of the win.

The milk boy's of Arden Dairy pulled a major upset by zipping past Dolphin Real Estate 9-5. Ron Cotter, John Iamarino and Lee Zmerzhkar combined to belt 8 hits in the win. The Dairy club was further paced by the 4 hit pitching of Jim Daveggio.

The bats of Jeff Tomlinson and Don Henkel came alive to rap out 4 and 3 hits respectively in the victory. Gary Walter and Doug Newberg paced the Park Pacifica Union Pacers with 3 hits apiece in the loss.

Basic Rule Changes...

This column has often in the past spoken out against such basic rule changes in baseball as the designated pinch-hitter, and has at least once opted for three major leagues, eight teams in each. According to a recent Sporting News, we now have some support at high levels.

American League President Joe Cronin, in an interview for the Sporting News, spoke out against basic rule changes such as the designated pinch-hitter, and for three major leagues, eight teams in each.

Anyone silly enough to memorize our columns will remember that in approximately our last tirade against designated pinch-hitters, inch-runners, etc., we said, among other things, that such rule changes would take away "inside baseball" and deprive the fan of the delight of witnessing managerial maneuvering, of trying to guess the ensuing mystical strategy of the resident genius. And would, ultimately, take away much of the fun of being a baseball fan.

CRONIN, ACCORDING to Jim Ogle, a Sporting News correspondent, said of such playing rules. We're not about to seek rules changes:

"There'll be no changes in baseball's phony ways to hypo hits or scoring. There's nothing wrong with the game except in the eyes of those who are neither part of it nor fans of it. We're not going to tinker with it."

"Sure, there have been a lot of suggestions for basic changes such as designated pinch-hitters and runners, the extended foul lines and going to three balls and two strikes... We gave them all a fair trail, either in spring training or the minors, and none stood up to the test, in our estimation."

"The designated hitters or runners would take away a lot of strategy, take away the percentages from managers and even spoil the fun for grandstand managers."

(About the three balls, two strikes rule, we had said that if anything, rather than speeding up the game, it would slow it down, because of the extra amount of free passes which would occur. About this rules change, Cronin said:)

"Instead of speeding up the game, walking on three balls would slow it down. In the experiments, the walks shot way up!"

When Cronin was asked what he thought of Walter O'Malley's recent suggestion of each major league being divided into three divisions of four teams each, Cronin stated that he didn't like it.

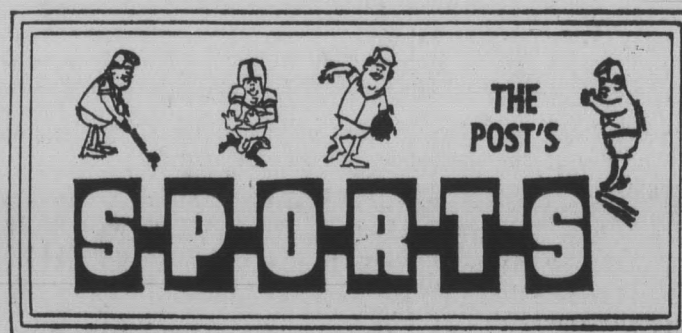

"I would lean more to the establishment of three leagues. If there is any major change in baseball's foreseeable future, the establishment of three leagues... each with eight teams... would be it."

"It could be set up geographically, with Eastern, Midwestern, and Western leagues, all with regional rivalries. It would be feasible economically, plus helping TV and radio contracts, the newspaper coverage and eliminate much of the time-gone problem."

That you, Mr. Cronin.

WE CAN UNDERSTAND the necessity of Willie Mays playing first base when Willie McCovey's various ailments around the joints are kicking up on him, but we don't buy Charley Fox's theory, when he plays Mays on first in second games of double-headers when McCovey is relatively sound, that he is doing it to rest Mays.

We played both first base and the out- (Please turn to Page 19, Col. 1)

Basic Rule Changes...

field right on up through semi-pro baseball in our wild youth, and never found first base to be restful (OK, OK, we can hear the wise remarks right now); in fact, we always looked forward to a day in the outfield, to relax.

At first, a player is in on about 80 per cent of all plays, directly or indirectly, he must throw the ball around to the infielders between innings, and participate in the throwing around of the ball after each out (when there are no men on base, of course); and he is more susceptible to injury, i.e., being spiked or run over while taking throws on the inside of the bag on the line, falling into stands or dugouts on pip flies, being whacked in the eye or even more sensitive places by bad hops, etc.

If an outfielder can stay away from the fences and set up a reasonable communications system with his outfield mates to avoid collisions, all he has to worry about is chasing maybe four baseballs a game and trotting in and out from and to his position after every inning.

If bleacher fans aren't uncannily accurate with beer cans, as a matter of fact, an outfielder has it made in the shade, which is where he is often at if he plays in a stadium with high fences.

But then again, maybe the big leagues are different than semi-pro baseball. And maybe Charley Fox is right, and maybe the Giants will win the pennant, in which case it won't make any difference where Willie Mays got tired or rested, as long as he played.

WE WERE PONDERING the problems of Looey Aparicio, the other day. The little Boston shortstop, who is a sure Hall of Famer in our tattered book, had gone something like zip for 45, and was still playing virtually every inning of every game, apparently becoming more futile at bat with each day. There was no rest for Aparicio, no time off to spell his weary bat and collect his hitting philosophy. Red Sox Manager Eddie Kasko wasn't being punitive, and he had a capable replacement. He was playing Aparicio because Looey was still effective in the field, and the Red Sox were winning with him. And so, because Aparicio did not, as so many players do, allow his batting slump to affect the rest of his game, he had, ironically, to endure an ever-spiraling slump.

Thus, good defensive players are often "punished" for their talent, having to endure perhaps more prolonged slumps than the man who can hit and little else. The hitter can be taken out when he isn't hitting, because that is the only way he can help the team. He can rest, study, and return perhaps a better hitter than ever. The fine defensive players have another way to beat you, so they stay, and stay.

According to the Pacini law, then, a good defensive player must always expect to sacrifice his batting statistics, and, to carry it one step further, the best baseball players are the ones who get into the longest batting slumps. Because they can't get into a long batting slump unless they're playing, and if they're playing despite a batting slump, they must be doing other things to help the team win.

Writing of Aparicio, he is, incidentally, despite his famous slump, seventh among active players in total career hits (2,136).

ANOTHER MONTE MOORISM: Our favorite funny baseball announcer was recently extolling the upcoming A's Hat Day (or was it Bat Day, or T-Shirt Day or Jock-Strap Day?), telling his loyal listeners about all the fun and excitement they could have if they attended, really putting out the big pitch, which concluded, in a froth of enthusiasm, "of course, don't bother to call for tickets, because we are already sold out for that game."

SUDDEN THOUGHTS: With the fields going over almost completely, to artificial grasses, now, how are players going to be able to tell which way the wind is blowing without looking at the flags or the swirling hot dog wrappers? Are the good old days when an outfielder could reach down, grab a fingerful of grass and fling it to the winds, gone forever? And how do they clean the tobacco stains off the new surfaces? These things worry us.

Have you ever noticed that whenever a team has a big inning, there are almost always fewer hits in the inning than runs? Which, if you read between the box scores, tells you why managers so detest walks. Without the free pass, there would hardly ever be a big inning.

Will it ever be financially feasible to do golf courses up in artificial surfaces? If it ever does, we will immediately cease making threats to start playing golf again. We never could putt on the living room rug.

TAG END: Terry Christman, the former Westmoor flash who had a minor league career with the Mets and who is now teaching school, is moonlighting by pitching batting practice for the Oakland A's when they're at home.

College Trustees Approve Cuts

The San Mateo Junior College District Board of Trustees Wednesday voted to cut the district's administrative costs by almost 15 per cent.

The board, meeting at the College of San Mateo, slashed away seven full-time positions and a number of part-time posts totalling just over $176,000. The cutback had been debated in the district for weeks.

The move had been promised by board members prior to the March 2 tax election as part of a major effort to find ways to make economies.

Trustee Francis Pearson also listed a number of other economic considerations for future study.

Among his suggestions were: The centralization of all general services under the district office; the centralization of the position of the director of financial aids; the combining of the position of campus security and student center manager at the College of San Mateo; the centralization of community services; the centralization of the director of libraries; the elimination of the assistant for resources development; the possible closing of all cafeterias, providing canteen services only;

and the possibility of leasing the cafeterias to private operators.

Pearson further suggested that the district engage private management consultants or a citizens' committee of executives to study the district and each college.

He said he wanted to consider some other areas of concern: The elimination of unnecessary course offerings; a reduction of course offerings to lower expenditures; establishment of class size division; reduction of allowance for attendance at meetings and conferences; minimization of release time; determination to see if staff and faculty are spending required time on campus; and the encouragement of legislation to remove the state physical education requirement at the college level.

Many of Pearson's suggestions are already under study by District Chancellor Clifford Erickson and his staff. Under Erickson's nine-point plan for future economics, another $368,000 in administrative costs could be saved.

Even as the board was preparing the vote on the chancellor's initial $176,000 recommendation, opposition to his plan was still being voiced by members of the district faculty. The presidents of the three faculty senates at Skyline, Canada and CSM wrote a letter to the board members listing their negative thoughts about the chancellor's proposal.

In the letter, Floyd E. Elkins of Skyline, John F. Mullen of CSM and Gilbert Workman of Canada said: "We believe it was ill-advised to promise the voters of this district a 15 per cent administrative reduction before a careful study was made of the effects of such a move on the services provided to our students and the community."

"The administrative cuts proposed would increase the power of the district office administration at the expense of each college's autonomy."

"The recommended cuts will materially affect the quality of the educational programs of our colleges."

And, "No adequate plan has been developed to show how administrative functions deleted at the college will be performed by district office personnel."

Mullen, who read the letter to the board members, further noted that, "Our faculties were not informed of the proposed administrative cuts until two weeks ago, although they had been under development and discussion for many weeks before."

"We believe that much valuable insight could have been gained through true faculty participation in the formulation of these recommendations," he concluded.

Beer Purchase Charged; Five Are Held

Five persons were arrested in connection with the purchase of a six-pack of beer at a Daly City supermarket Wednesday. The beer was bought for a 17-year-old youth about 10 p.m.

Openings Listed in Programs

The Pacifica Park, Beach and Recreation Department will sponsor its second annual Summer High School Basketball League, starting June 25.

More information about the league may be obtained from the Recreation Department. League entry fee is $25. There are still openings in summer Baseball, swimming for Children and tiny tots, pre-school and tennis programs.

Police said Robert Powers, 22, and Virginia Lee Childers, 22, both of San Francisco, bought the beer for an unidentified teen-ager who waited outside the market.

When the pair handed over the beer a store security guard placed them under arrest and called police.

Officer Charles Mudder was placing the three suspects in the rear of his patrol car when Rance Lawson, 19, 101 San Diego Avenue, and Mary B. Meyer, 19, of 244 Citrus Avenue, both in Daly City, allegedly tried to release the trio by opening the car door.

Mudder was able to prevent the escape and subsequently arrested the two girls.

Miss Lawson was booked for assaulting a policeman, attempted rescue of a prisoner and resisting arrest. Miss Meyer was charged with assaulting a policeman, resisting arrest and possession of marijuana.

Both Powers and Miss Childers were booked for providing alcohol to a child.

Millbrae Home for Aged Planned

A 10-bed home for the aged, with a four-bedroom home on top for the owner-operator, received tentative approval Monday from the Millbrae Planning Commission.

Owner Nshan Hambarzumjan and architect Neil Vannucci explained the concept of a home for the aged, which would be Millbrae's first.

Both pointed out that the home will be licensed by the state and county and will be for ambulatory persons only, and is therefore not a hospital, rest home or convalescent hospital.

Neither is it quite a boarding house, in the usual sense, since its customers are expected to be only people who are 65 or older, and who live on social security or welfare, or a type of retirement income. They will not own cars, said Hambarzumjan, therefore little parking is required.

Hambarzumjan said he operates a similar home in San Francisco, but has bought the property at 15 Mateo Avenue in Millbrae because he and his family want to live on the Peninsula.

Commissioners questioned the proposal for two hours before voting tentative approval, dependent upon Vannucci providing landscaping and architectural designs the commission finds more acceptable.

The commission adopted a recommended change in the city sign ordinance to tighten up rules related to non-conforming signs on buildings which change ownerships.

They withheld action on an appeal from Martinelli's Steak Pit for increased sign footage. Spokesman Darien Henderson was instructed to go back to the owner and see if some existing signs can be eliminated before new ones are added.

A public hearing on the Alpha Land Company proposal to build a 120-unit condominium apartment development on Vallejo Drive at "Tower Hill" was scheduled for July 26.

John L. Griffin, executive vice president of Alpha, protested the late hearing date because it will mean that construction could not begin before September.

He was told that the commission has too much business before it, with vacations coming up, to hear the proposal before late July.

SSF City Planner Talks Annexation

South San Francisco should not only annex San Francisco International Airport, it should control development of San Bruno Mountain, its city planner says.

Dan Pass, planner for "the Industrial City," last week said Millbrae and San Bruno are not the only cities interested in annexing the airport.

San Bruno recently won approval from the county's Local Agency Formation Commission to annex certain airport lands west of Bayshore Freeway, with Millbrae's similar appeal being turned down.

Pass said he and South San Francisco's planning department continually have suggested that all the airport property belongs in South San Francisco.

Pass, Mayor William Borba, City Manager Gale Dreisbach and Police Chief Sal Rosano, spoke before the citizens' group, "Avalon Concerned Taxpayers," at Avalon School.

"We will soon be providing the airport with sewage treatment and disposal facilities," said Pass. "South San Francisco already provides a majority of police and fire services."

Pass noted the airport is an extension of South San Francisco land use. "Part of the United Airlines maintenance base is within South San Francisco confines," he said.

"I merely call it as I professionally feel," said Pass. "This may be wholly unendorsed by the city council but I feel it is necessary, tenable and feasible."

"The right time to move is when it's politically feasible and only the decision makers can determine this," said Pass.

Pass also had some definite feelings on proposed development of San Bruno Mountain. According to him, control of development should rest with one city—South San Francisco.

"Proper planning refutes the dismembering of this mountain by several cities," said Pass. "The city that does take the mountain must be able to provide the necessary services. This is South San Francisco."

Pass said Daly City has historically failed to use its land properly for long range orderly growth and progress of its residents.

He pointed to South San Francisco's Westborough developments and Cabot, Cabot and Forbes' Industrial Park as evidence the city proceeds with proper planning.

Dreisbach warned that "people are being hoodwinked by the state and slowly, everyday, are losing control of their local government."

Dreisbach told the nearly 50 people present that "it's time to stand up and be counted. At a drop of a hat the state can create any agency or board it desires. If we are not careful we are going to do away with the cities. The last legislature has done all in its power to rob local control."

As to South San Francisco's present governmental structure, Dreisbach said he looks upon it as a corporation with the people being the stockholders.

"It's time we ran it like a business, rather than a nursery school," said Dreisbach.

San Bruno Seeks Blacks as Community Officers

By BOB PETERSON

San Bruno Police are seeking black applicants to fill positions as community service officers.

Interested men between the ages of 17 and 20 should contact Capt. Bill Cann as soon as possible at the police station on El Camino Real between 9 a.m. and noon daily. There are no residency requirements.

Captain Cann said he already has received enough applications from other minority groups and whites.

The city will employ six young men to work 20 hours a week beginning July 1 under a program financed by the federal government through the 1968 Omnibus Crime Bill.

Captain Cann secured the grant, which gives the city $24,000 for the first year of a three-year project. Total grant for the three-year period is $70,564. The city must re-apply each year. "We couldn't afford to implement this program without these funds," said the captain.

Applicants for the positions of Community Service Officer do not have to meet the conventional educational requirements of the department.

Captain Cann said selection will be made on an individual basis, with priority given to applicants with promising aspirations, honesty, intelligence and desire to advance their education.

Captain Cann said cities too long have sat back and fulfilled tokenism positions with minorities. "That's not proper. We should provide positions without pressure," he said. San Bruno does not have a large minority population.

The new Community Service Officers will spend approximately 50 per cent of their time doing relief of auxiliary police services, such as being traffic officers.

They will work on non-criminal matters, such as processing reports of abandoned and junked cars, and may be used in minor service calls.

For the other 50 per cent of the time, the men will be going into the schools (at all age levels) in an attempt to build two-way communication between youth and police.

"We want to find out what their problems are with the police," said Captain Cann. "And we also want them to know what are our problems with them."

"If the kids in school ask questions that can't be answered by our Community Service Officers they'll tell them they will return with an answer. There'll be no malarky answers," said Cann.

The captain said he expected about a 30 per cent turnover during the three years the program is in operation. This, he said, will be caused by some being drafted, some going on to become a policeman, others finding it's not what they like and some that will lack capabilities.

Although it is only a three-year program, Captain Cann feels the city will see the benefits of the program and will elect to continue it on a regular basis.

"Through this program we can provide services at a reduced cost," he said. The Community Service Officers will receive $2.80 an hour, doing work the city presently pays officers as high as $6 or $7 an hour for doing.

The captain said also the department, with the youths, will be providing some preventive services. He said the program is a career incentive device and it gives minorities an inside track without meeting the minimum standards of civil service. "We will give these youths in-house training, including special classes at the high schools and colleges, to improve those areas (such as English or government) in which they are deficient," said Captain Cann. "We also will be preparing them for civil service exams."

The city will provide uniforms. These will be casual styled clothing, such as a blazer, a hat and a duty jacket that will make them easily recognizable as members of the police department.

Officer Frank Cook will be in charge of the Community Service Officers.

Halley: The Growth at Lake Tahoe

business community is, if anything, more stable and conservative than that of other areas of interior United States.

Existing in the same geographical area as the glitter of gambling and quick divorces is a central community that acts as a focal point for commerce in the northern part of Nevada and surrounding states. Businessmen mainly eat in the gambling casinos, where prices are quite reasonable. I found, however, that when I bought a Keno card at lunch, knowing looks darted about the table indicating that I was some kind of naive outsider, which I was.

Like the rest of the United States, this frontier has its problems. The very expansion that gives excitement brings a sense of loss. I could feel it on my daily trip.

For one thing, the beautiful snow isn't all that beautiful up close. Examined at the roadside or even at quite a distance, it is dirty. Small trees along the side of the road bear a visible blight where they have been exposed to the exhaust of passing vehicles. Forest fires have ravaged some of the mountains. Natives speak longingly of deer that roamed the area just a few years ago.

The Washoe Valley itself is changing. To the north, in the area of Reno, smog is clearly visible on calm days. And the building and bustle mean more people, more activity and more pollution.

The rivers in this area don't go to sea. They run into lakes and the water eventually evaporates. But each year the level of these lakes is lower. Washoe Lake seems a remnant now and appears to be headed for extinction, just as Tulare Lake disappeared from the floor of the great valley of California.

As a lifelong dweller in metropolitan areas, I could visualize rows of houses typical of our strip cities stretching from one end of the beautiful Washoe Valley to the other.

People are the difference. We bring the ebullience, the excitement, the sense of newness and growth. We also bring brackish water, stunted trees and depressing sameness.

America needs the rebirth and stimulation of expansion into new areas, but she also needs to temper her living habits in order to preserve her natural heritage. Hopefully, Reno and other cities of the future will learn from New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and even Newark as they grow.

Ryan's Bill Moves Past a Committee

The controversial Elementary Demonstration Scholarship Act of 1971, better known as the Voucher Plan, was passed by the State Assembly Ways and Means Committee Wednesday and sent to the Assembly floor.

Sponsored by Assemblyman Leo Ryan, the bill would permit the use of federal Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) funds for four elementary school district pilot programs to try out the voucher system. One of the districts reportedly being considered for the program is the Laguna Salada district in Pacifica, on the San Mateo County Coastside.

Under the voucher system, parents would be given vouchers equal to the amount spent the preceding year in their district that would be turned in to any school in the district, public or private, to finance their child's education.

"The object is to try this system out, to see if it works and presents a meaningful alternative to the present educational system," Ryan said. "All the plan does is use existing funds to establish pilot programs in four school districts in the state to see if the free market place will work in education."

Ryan said the Ways and Means Committee's approval of the bill removed the last major roadblock to the bill's passage in the Assembly.

"This really isn't a radical proposal, but it does involve an examination of the entire method of funding education in the state," Ryan said. "With approval by the Assembly Education Committee on the policy of the bill, and Ways and Means on the financing, I feel we have a good chance of getting the bill passed."

Developers Offer S.M. Park Site

San Mateo is being offered 90.9 acres of parkland by the developers of the Sugarloaf project.

In addition, another 29.4 acres would be retained in private ownership but left undeveloped. These proposals were outlined to the planning commission last week by Harold Atkinson, planning consultant for the developer, Cargus Corporation.

The city has not committed itself to acceptance of the park acreage. Details such as development and maintenance must be worked out first.

After more than three hours of discussion the commission set July 21 for the first public hearing on the plan for development of 259.9 acres in the hilly area south of Laurelwood.

The project would involve construction of garden apartments, single family homes and tower apartments. There also would be three small commercial areas east of the Nineteenth Avenue Freeway. About 92 feet would be sliced off the top of Sugarloaf Mountain where most of the tower apartments, up to ten floors in height, would be built.

There would be four park areas donated to the city, Atkinson said.

The developers would prefer to see the parks used for what Atkinson termed "passive recreation." This would consist of hiking, wildlife study and, possibly, bicycle paths and a lake, he said. A ban on motor vehicles, organized sports and overnight use would be desirable, he added.

"We feel we can have a highly desirable place to live as well as a great park area," Atkinson said.

A total of 29.4 acres on the south slope of Sugarloaf, overlooking Belmont, would be retained in private ownership. Atkinson said the area is too hilly for park use. Additionally, there would be a 100-foot wide buffer zone between residences and park areas that would remain essentially unbuilt upon.

The great majority of trees and existing brush cover would be saved, Atkinson said. Planting contemplated by Cargus actually would increase the total plant cover, Atkinson said.

He disclosed that an ecological consultant has been retained to inventory types of wildlife, to study plantings for erosion control and wildlife food and to insure maintenance of present ecological values.

The project is expected to take ten years to complete. It will involve the movement of 5,969,000 cubic yards of earth, most of it to be taken from the area.

Atkinson said the dirt hauling probably would continue during the entire period of construction, although not on a year-round basis.

R.C. Slayer Found Guilty

Christopher Zachary Brown was found guilty this week of first degree murder in the killing of a Belmont man in a Redwood City parking lot last January 15.

In addition, a jury of five men and seven women found Brown, 20, of Redwood City, guilty of armed robbery in the first degree and of being armed with a deadly weapon.

Judge Robert D. Miller set the second or penalty phase of the trial for 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, June 22. The jury must decide whether to sentence Brown to death or to give him a life sentence. Brown was accused of killing Gene Evislizer, 49, in the parking lot of Mel's Bowl during a robbery.

Woodside Sets Budget

The Woodside town council on Monday adopted a $444,130 budget for the coming year by a five to two vote.

"Because it is expected the new budget will result in a 4-cent tax rate increase, Councilmen Charles C. Bunker and John Bobick voted adoption. The town's present tax rate is 31-cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The new tax rate is estimated at 35-cents.

Conditions Added to Log Permit

A permit to log in the watershed of La Honda Creek near Skyland was granted by the County Planning Commission this week to the Bayside Timber Company.

In doing so, however, the commission added six special conditions to the restrictions of the new county logging ordinance, considered one of the toughest timbering laws in the nation.

One condition is that no logging will be permitted below a specified ridge line in an effort to protect the creek, the main source of water for the 500 family members of the Skyland Mutual Water Company. Leonard Theiss, county natural resources coordinator, said the action would reduce the number of trees to be cut by about one fourth.

Whether George Barnes, president of Bayside, is agreeable to that and other conditions was not known. He was in the Eureka area on a logging job at the time of the meeting.

Deputy District Attorney Henry A. Dietz said, however, that Barnes has the privilege of appealing to the Board of Supervisors if he does not agree.

Other conditions include restricting the hours of operation from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday to minimize the noise impact on the neighboring residential area, and controlling log hauling so that trucks using La Honda Road and Skyline Boulevard do not interfere with commuter and school bus traffic.

The public hearing on the Bayside application had been closed at an earlier session and a decision was scheduled for yesterday. At the outset, Commissioner Wallace Benson moved that the permit be denied because of the possible detrimental effect on the water supply.

Dietz said, however, that Barnes has the right to log his property and pointed out that the purpose of the ordinance is to regulate logging, not prohibit it.

Benson finally moved that the permit be approved, with the addition of the special conditions to protect the creek. The motion was approved unanimously.

Spring Water Floods Floor

The Pacific Room of San Mateo's Villa Hotel was flooded inches deep in clear spring water on Monday. Firemen worked two hours to pump out an estimated 5,000 gallons of water.

The hotel manager said this morning that crews will work around the clock to refinish the ballroom, whose parquet floor was covered with water, in time for an elaborate dinner dance for a San Francisco lodge Saturday night.

Damage was estimated at possibly several thousand dollars. Firemen said underground springs which flow all through the property provided the water after a sump pump failed. A freight elevator was filled with five feet of water.

The hotel manager said the quality and quantity of water had started thinking about an elaborate fountain to tap the supply.

Tentative Plan for S.C.

The San Carlos School Board Monday approved a preliminary budget of $3.7 million for the forthcoming 1971-1972 school year. A final decision on the budget is expected to be made at the Board's August meeting.

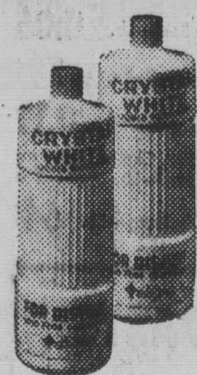

The preliminary budget contains a 5 per cent cost of living adjustment for all certificated and classified employees, plus a 2 1/2 per cent salary increase for the latter group.

Certificated employees include teachers, principals and vice-principals, consultants, psychologists, the superintendent and the assistant superintendent. Classified employees include office workers and building maintenance personnel.

Saga Administrative Corp. President William F. Scandling announced that the Menlo Park firm's board of directors has approved a 100 per cent stock dividend payable to shareholders of record as of the close of business on June 25.

Delinquency Referrals Leveling Off: Report

A noticeable, although perhaps only temporary, leveling off in juvenile delinquency referrals is cited in the annual report of the San Mateo County Probation Department.

Although the referral rate increased 121 per cent during the sixties, it dropped markedly in 1970.

"There appears to be some evidence that, for the time being, the juvenile referral rate is leveling off," the report states.

Willard Oates, director of the Juvenile Probation Division, said he was uncertain about the reasons for the drop, but had a couple of observations about it. He noted a sharp increase in referrals in 1969 following a spate of radical activity on college campuses in the fall of 1968. He theorized that some of the agitation rubbed off on high school youngsters "and caused a lot of acting out behavior."

"I think I have seen certain three-year patterns occurring as far as delinquency referrals are concerned," Oates said. "I can't account for it and I'm not certain that it is significant, but we look for a three-year plateauing effect."

Delinquency referrals ranged from 1,688 to 1,791 in the 1960-62

period, from 2,345 to 2,422 in 1964-65, and from 2,795 to 3,024 in 1966-68. The 1969 total jumped to 3,965, while last year there were 3,452 referrals.

"We expect 1971 to be about the same, but a little quieter than in 1970," Oates said.

The report notes, on the other hand, that in the Adult Division the number of referrals, which increased 260 per cent during the sixties, climbed another 17 per cent last year. The big reason: drugs.

"In 1965," the report states, "the Adult Division had as few as 59 cases referred for offenses involving drugs and narcotics. In 1970, this figure increased to 771, or 22 per cent of all cases."

The report cites a similar "explosive acceleration" of drug cases on the juvenile side.

"In 1964, there were no youngsters referred for the use of drugs and narcotics. In 1970, however, the division received 647 new referrals."

Assemblyman Says Bill to Lower Taxes

San Mateo County taxpayers will save $450,000 if a bill introduced by Assemblyman Dixon Arnett is passed by the legislature and signed into law by Governor Reagan before July 10.

The savings would represent a three per cent decrease on the county's tax rate for the next fiscal year.

Assembly Bill 777 would permit a reduction in the county's contribution rate for retirement by allowing funding over a 30 year period rather than the present 15.

"My bill passed easily out of the Assembly with a 57 to 0 vote, Assemblyman Arnett said, today. 'I was then notified of the possibility of saving the taxpayer a tremendous amount of money if we could move the bill by July 1.'"

The assemblyman explained that for this to happen an urgency clause must be inserted so the bill, once signed by the governor, would become law immediately rather than the present 60 days after final adjournment of the Legislature.

Special permission must be granted on the Senate floor to debate the bill earlier than ordinarily would be the case. Moreover, the bill must come back to the Assembly for concurrence on the urgency clause.

Arrangements are being made to expedite the bill's progress according to Assemblyman Arnett.

S.C. to Seek Traffic Funds

San Carlos city councilmen on Monday agreed to ask for state funds to finance a study to determine the best location of a grade crossing over Southern Pacific tracks.

The council passed a resolution to be sent to the State Office of Traffic Safety.

According to city officials, the crossing could be constructed at various locations such as Holly, Howard or Brittan avenues.

The council also agreed to ask that State Highway Commission for $33,916 in "TOPICS" funds to install additional traffic signals along El Camino Real. The application must be submitted to the state by June. The city would allocate about $18,000 to install the signals.

"TOPICS" stands for "traffic operations to increase capacity and safety."

Contractor Arrested

Walter F. Frank, 58, of 3600 Tripp Road, Woodside, a landscape contractor, was arrested for felony drunk driving Tuesday after the car he was driving allegedly ran a stop sign on Valota Road at Woodside Road, Redwood City. It crashed into another car, seriously injuring its driver.

Taken to Sequoia Hospital for emergency treatment and transferred to the Veterans Administration Hospital in Palo Alto for extensive surgery was Melvin D. Siranni, 56, of Hayward. He suffered severe fractures of the right shoulder and leg and numerous cuts and bruises. Officer Timothy Mellor reported.

School Meet Set in Belmont

Belmont School District board of trustees will meet in closed session at the unusual hour of 7 a.m. Thursday at the district office on Hallmark Drive for further discussion of district employee salaries for the next fiscal year.

The district also has announced it will accept applications from Belmont city residents for a district-appointed seat on the city Recreation and Park Commission.

Applications must be received at the district office, 2960 Hallmark, by Monday, June 21.

Church Notes

Head Start Project; Pastor's Installation

Worship celebrating the Head Start project will be held at the Grace Presbyterian Church Sunday at 11 a.m. in the church sanctuary.

The pastor, the Rev. James McCluskey, said, "It is a privilege for our church to provide the facility for this outstanding children's project. As Christians, we enthusiastically endorse the goals of this program."

Especially, we are excited about the goal to help both the child and his family to a greater confidence, self-respect and dignity.

The purpose of the service of worship Sunday is to highlight Head Start to the congregation. He said. Another is to "express our sincere appreciation to the many persons in the church and community who have helped to establish the project."

Special guests Sunday will be the Head Start parents and children.

Mrs. Betty Oliver and members of the staff will be present, and will be joined by Marion Goodwin, director of the Daly City Information and Referral Center, the Head Start delegate agency.

Mrs. Alison Glickman, County Coordinator for Head Start also will be present.

Persons in the community are encouraged to attend. The Grace Presbyterian Church is located on the corner of Crocker Avenue and Winchester Street.

THE REV. THOMAS J. UNMACHT will be installed as pastor of Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Pacifica on June 20, at 4 p.m.

The Rt. Rev. Gaylord Falde, Bishop of the South Pacific District of the American Lutheran Church, will conduct the installation celebration and deliver the sermon.

Christian clergymen from the North Peninsula-San Francisco area will participate in the service.

Liturgist will be the Rev. Elmer Laursen, Chaplain at the U.C. Medical Center. Lecturers include the Rev. Lee Thoni, the Rev. Ken Caudill, the Rev. Gerald Dummier, the Rev. Bill Williams, the Rev. James McCluskey, and the Rev. James Current.

The Rev. Curdie Johnson and the Rev. Bill Nadell will assist.

Bill Newman, president of the congregation, will participate in the service along with the "yoke-choir" of both Bethlehem and Westlake Lutheran Church. The "yoke-choir" will be under the direction of Jerry Peek and Bob Carnahan.

Pastor Unmacht will continue to serve as pastor of Westlake Lutheran Church of Daly City, where he has served for four years.

After months of discussion, both congregations voted almost unanimously to enter into this new "yoke-ministry" venture. Both congregations will remain separate, but will unite together around common tasks of ministry.

Plans are underway for both congregations to call future staff members together for team ministry.

Pastor Unmacht is a graduate of Pacific Lutheran University in Tacoma, Washington and the Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary in Berkeley, California. He served for three and a half years as associate pastor of the First Lutheran Church of Columbia Heights in Minneapolis, Minnesota, before coming to Westlake Lutheran four years ago. He and his wife, Sharon,

Not Guilty Plea Told

Daniel "Don" San Carlos, bar owner, and a former bartender, pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy on Friday in the Orchard Road gambling case.

A third defendant, Donald Michaelson, of San Bruno, was found guilty of conspiracy and grand theft previously after a trial before Superior Judge Gerald Ragan.

Don Carlos, 38, owner of the Orchard Road, and Sylvester, 28, are scheduled to go to trial July 13 at 10 a.m.

During Michaelson's trial it was alleged that a bowling game was rigged and that dice were fixed to favor the defendant in betting against a patron.
